Gravel industry's plan for 3800 acres

The gravel industry has revealed its "master reclamation plan" for some 3800 acres in the heart of this Valley.

It is a 50 - year, multi - level program that could bring as much as 2000 acres back to full — although still uncertain — use.

It leans heavily on great expanses of water, including virtually all of the area south from Stanley Boulevard, and offering an extension of Shadow Cliffs Park's aquatic uses east to Isabel Avenue, and south into the existing Arroyo del Valle.

Best of all, from the public's viewpoint, the reclamation plan as now submitted leaves no hope of reviving that great "garbage fill" venture proposed by Kaiser Sand and Gravel, and that was thought to be still alive in the courts.

Asked by The Times if this garbage "oversight" in their plans was intentional, a top Kaiser executive replied "You said it, that's it."

What is left to "reclaim" the pits left depleted by 100 years of quarrying will be the "silt" that is washed from the exportable sand and gravel. "Up to 12 percent" of the raw product can will be retained through washing, industry spokesmen state.

The "overburden" of rich soil that goes to depths of up to 40 feet would also be retained, providing the "capping" that would become the final seal on "silted" areas.

Richard Karn, speaking for the firm of engineering consultants that put together the reclamation plan for four extractors working in this Valley, outlined his "progress report" to a distinguished Friday luncheon assembly in Pleasanton. Top county officials, representatives of state agencies, the "big four" extractors and members of Pleasanton and Livermore city governments gathered to hear that report.

'Garbage fill' is shelved. . . Valley gravel resources hit $2.4 billion

What they heard was bold, somewhat new, often imaginative and — in the words of Councilman Glen Dahlbacka of Livermore — "Still a long way from the answers we want right now, for the problems those pits present in the next 15 years."

Neither did this "first stage" report make any reference to Valley concerns about traffic flow ... gravel trucks now, and eventually access into the "reclaimed areas," some of which would be like islands within that vast expanse of water. Traffic will be the subject of an Oct. 15 meeting of the Valley Sand and Gravel Committee, the advisory group which put together Friday's all - star gathering.

On that subject of access into the reclaimed area however, Karn did advise The Times "we realized that could be a problem ... there will be dikes left that could be converted into access roads ... but perhaps the final use of all reclaimed areas will be agricultural, so the access needs would be minimal."

It is clear that less than half of the 1200 acres actually reclaimed within

Pleasanton's tree funds appropriated

PLEASANTON — The city council will buy more trees thanks to a $4,000 fund raised by the Trees for Pleasanton Committee.

The committee donated 243 trees to the city last year. Some died, others were the victims of vandals. The city will take part of the $4,000 and replace the dead trees, then add a few more trees to various bare spots around the city which need them.

Councilman William Herlihy noted at the council meeting last week that the proposal omits trees for Main Street.

William Gale, speaking for the committee, said that will be in next year's plans when mature trees will be planted on Main Street.

On another item at the council meeting last week, the council approved a policy for donating a shelter or bench at the AC Transit stops. Merchants or other individuals may donate a shelter or bench at one of the locations approved by the city. A plaque would be placed on the shelter to show who donated it. but there would be no other advertising.

State, county and local officials were on hand to hear Richard Karn (standing) present the gravel industry's long - awaited "reclamation plan" for almost 3000 acres of depleted pits that will be left by 100 years of quarrying. The maps at right show the extent of that industry's impact on a 3800 - acre expanse, by the year 2030.

Murray teachers call 'slowdown'

DUBLIN — There won't be many teachers lingering on campus after school tomorrow, and faculty meetings will be sparsely attended.

It will be the first day of the Murray Teachers Association job slowdown — and possibly the last, if a negotiating session set for 2:30 p.m. goes successfully.

If not, "back to school nights" and dances and all the other formal and informal after - school activities in which teachers usually take part will probably be canceled because of lack of teacher participation.

At an emergency closed session Friday at noon, Murray school board members gave directions to their representative. Whether they were changing their offer to the teachers or not, they wouldn't say. Teachers are asking for a 7.3 per cent cost - of - living raise, while the board has offered them 4 per cent.

According to MTA president Bob Kroetch, the boycott on extracurricular activities is designed to put pressure on the administration without directly affecting the students.

"It makes the administration madder than heck when we don't show up at their meetings," Kroetch observed.

"We plan to check in 30 minutes before school starts and work until the bell rings," he explained. "There will be no more staying around getting ready for the next day; no extra hours spent in planning; no ECE (Early Childhood Education) meetings or district - wide curriculum planning meetings."

He said the administration would probably criticize the teachers for harming their pupils' educational experience — "They hold the kids over your head all the time. But it's the school board that holds the kids hostage."

If negotiations don't proceed well tomorrow afternoon, Kroetch plans to ask teachers to show up at the public board meeting tomorrow night, to dramatize their support for their cost - of - living request.

"This is the first time that they've really got the money," he said, noting that the district would still have a quarter of a million dollars' reserve if they grant teachers their raise.

"Why do we have to go through this?" he demanded.

Teachers are also asking to retain their current level of benefits, which will cost the district 1.2 per cent more this year. They also want to keep the $500 a year step increases they receive for each year of service to the district up to eight years; and the column increases they can earn by going to college for their master's and doctor's degrees.

MTA negotiators are headed by Regina Paulus, a teacher at Lydiksen School. Keith Breon is the school board's salaried negotiator.

Bargaining in Amador on upswing

Some progress has been reported in Amador Valley Joint High School District negotiations between teachers and administration and, following talks Friday, it appears there will be no teacher slowdown called tomorrow.

Jim Eaton, spokesman for the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association, told the Times "It appears we have agreement on a couple of the issues."

One is arbitration, Eaton said and added, "We have moved away from binding arbitration and the board has said it will outline conditions where it wouldn't abide by binding arbitration, but where it would abide by advisory arbitration."

Eaton also said, "We're still apart on salary but we're working on compromise language." Regarding the agency shop issue, the board will submit a list of questions it wants answered.

Teachers will meet Monday to hear the latest from its bargaining team.

"Things are starting to move," Eaton concluded. "It's not a final agreement," he said, "but then we weren't asking for that. We just wanted some movement in the negotiations. So in that sense, it is a positive step.

Citizens tell Las Positas span choice

PLEASANTON — A $1.6 million two - lane vehicle overcrossing with pedestrian and bike lanes is leading in the city - wide poll about what, if anything, should be done about building the proposed Las Positas overpass.

The poll's ballot, which appeared in The Times and The Independent Wednesday, lists six different options which the city council has discussed. The ballot describes each option and lists the estimated cost for it.

A total of 107 ballots had been counted as of Friday morning by Deputy City Clerk Doris George. Some ballots had rankings for the various options, but George counted only first place votes in those instances. Others marked their ballots one time only with an "x" or checkmark.

The two - lane overpass so far received 40 votes. In second place with 22 votes was the option calling for a pedestrian and bicycle overcrossing which can't be expanded to a vehicle overcrossing in the future. Its estimated cost is $400,000.

In third place was the option for "no crossing," an alternative proposed by residents who live near the proposed overcrossing. They object to the traffic and congestion which they feel the overpass would bring. Of course that option would cost nothing.

In fourth place with 12 votes was the full four lane vehicular overcrossing plus pedestrian and bikeway the cost of which is estimated at $2.5 million.

In fifth place was the most expensive option, a $5 million proposal for a full interchange with on and off ramps, four lanes for vehicles, and the pedestrian and bike areas. It got 10 votes.

In last place with nine votes was the alternative of building an $800,000 overpass for pedestrians and bicycles which later could be expanded to include vehicles.

Later Friday a few more ballots came to city hall, but too late to be added to the standings as of Friday morning.

Ballots should be mailed or delivered to the City Manager's Office, Civic Center, P.O. Drawer C, 200 Bernal Ave., Pleasanton, 94566. City officials expect the balloting to cease some time this week.

Meet called to fight litter woe

PLEASANTON — Main Street merchants will meet with city officials at 8:15 a.m. tomorrow in the City Council Chambers, 30 W. Angela St., to see what can be done about the litter and vandalism problems on the commercial strip.

Merchants are upset over messes in front of their stores and knots of youths congregating in front of shops, both putting dampers on retail sales.

The littering problem is so bad that several merchants have removed planter boxes because youths see them as garbage cans.

A merchant who talked to The Times Friday said he would like to see the police department send foot patrols down Main Street when youths congregate.

"That would do a lot more than two cops just sitting in their car," said the merchant. "Their mere presence won't discourage this."

The wine barrels on Main Street which act as planter boxes are a catch basin now for cans and cardboard containers and the planters ought to be removed, said the merchant. Maybe they could be sold with the proceeds going to purchase of large cardboard containers for litter, he said.

Many teens congreagate during the day on Main Street because Amador High School has an open campus policy which permits students to leave a campus during their lunch periods. The other big scene is at night, especially warm nights, when youths cruise up and down Main Street shouting and playing radios and stereos loudly. They do it as late as 1 a.m., according to residents who live nearby.

The police gave the street extra attention last weekend, but the cooler weather and return to school hours probably put a natural damper on the whole scene, according to Nelson.

The city has promised more police patrol and installation of "no U - turn" signs on Main Street in an effort to control cruising.

Livermore quake drill praised: Office of Emergency Services

LIVERMORE — An official of the Office of Emergency Services has called the recent earthquake paper drill here one of the best exercises in which he has been involved.

Harry King, coordinator for Region Two of OES in Concord, told city officials he found the local simulators (drill planners) quite knowledgeable in their fields, according to Jean Tucker, Livermore's emergency services assistant.

"Mr. King said the simulators helped make the exercise more realistic," she told the Times. "He thought it was well organized."

The simulators who prepared the problems to be solved came from city offices, Valley Memorial Hospital, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and the V.A. Hospital.

"But no exercise can be perfect," she said, noting a list of problems encountered during the August 27 earthquake drill.

Tucker has prepared a preliminary critique comprised of comments taped shortly after the drill by local volunteers in the drill. A complete critique report from Golden Gate University in San Francisco is expected six to eight weeks from now, she said.

Deficiencies in the system to be corrected and tested for future drills — and possibly the real thing — include:

— need for additional staff assistance to keep logs, prepare status reports, equipment commitment; — communications message flow confusion, due to the lack of time allowed for feedback between the 21 cities participating in the county - wide earthquake drill;

— ineffective use of volunteers. ("Sometimes we can have too many helpful citizens" if we do not have an effective system, said Tucker.);

— some services not utilized to their full extent, such as street department vehicles;

— not enough status reports received from the outside;

— smaller staff may be advisable in emergency operating center, with supervisors working in the field;

— unimportant messages delivered, causing waste of valuable time;

— inaccurate building condition status reports show need for positive confirmation before sending evacuees and equipment;

— city - wide public address system would be helpful;

— additional public information regarding what to do after an earthquake and where anticipated emergency centers would be opened should be publicized;

— additional simulators needed for next exercise to represent utility companies and other services;

— need for annual exercises.

Preliminary briefing sessions helped the program, Tucker said. "This time we switched to a round table concept instead of using separate rooms for different functions."

"It helps tremendously when you can talk to people next to you rather than get up and go into another room," she said.

Authentic in detail

Bill Knight of Pleasanton has come a long way since he built his first steam engine out of tin cans at age 10. All 40 of his engines, including this six-foot boat, are designed to actually perform their appropriate task, but Bill prefers to collect them. For his story see page 5.

County strives to erase social service confusion

Alameda County Bureau

The biggest problem for those using the county's multitude of social service programs and their private counterparts sometimes is getting connected to the right organization.

The stories of seemingly endless telephone transfers among agencies are legendary. The long waits on "hold" and the bounding from bureau to bureaucrat usually work out in the end.

But there are tales of misguided problems and inappropriate or incomplete results that make you wonder just who's running the show.

And with the breadth of programs available, from welfare to housing assistance to aid for the elderly, it's no wonder the maze of interconnecting lines is mistaken for a bumbling bureaucracy, concede county social workers.

All that will change, however, under what one participant in last week's social services symposium called "a whole new aura that seems to be coming down."

Nearly 400 representatives from community groups across the county came to the second of two symposiums sponsored by the county's director of social services Librado Perez. His aim: To integrate county and community programs to eliminate competition and foster cooperation.

"We share the same common denominator," he told the group, "people."

"Talking about welfare is like talking about politics," he said. "It generates a lot of emotion, but few answers."

Demands for social services have shot up — the economy, family instability and migration provide partial explanations — while available funds have not kept pace.

His staff of 1,850 operates on a $145 million budget, $35 million of which comes from county tax revenue. The balance is state and federal subvention.

All money from higher levels of government carries the inevitable "strings" complained about by all lower levels of government, he explained. But the strings vary in strength.

Some programs, like Aid To Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) are stringently set by the feds with no deviation on the local level.

At the other extreme, revenue sharing carries comparatively few restraints.

One of his agencies major problems, however, is coordinating the government sponsored programs with their civilian counterparts scattered throughout the community.

Perez will argue before county supervisors this week for approval of an information and referral service that will put social traffic directors in the field funneling people in need to the proper agency.

County social services..... "a whole new aura that seems to be coming down" .....draws nearly 400 representatives of community groups to a symposium.

And if he's successful, the valley will have its own I&R office at, of all places, the library in Pleasanton.

The location is not as strange as it first sounds, according to program director Barbara Helmuth.

"People come to libraries for all sorts of things. That's the place where you can find out everything you ever wanted to know but were afraid to ask."

The county wide program is scheduled to begin Jan. 11 and is still in the "planning stages," she emphasizes. Don't call yet.

The Pleasanton office will eliminate the traditional trek to Hayward and Fremont. Seven additional I&R offices will be scattered around the county in Berkeley, Oakland, Hayward, Fremont and Fairmont Hospital.

Preliminary plans call for two regular I&R specialists at the Pleasanton site. They'll take inquiries and requests and channel people to the appropriate agency. In some cases, they'll even arrange for transportation.

The problem, she says, "is telling people where to go. We try to avoid that phrase."

Where can a widowed, amputee diabetic go for supplemental social security income? Can she in turn do contributory work for some community group? How will she get there? Who can provide transportation.

Or the young emigrant from the East Coast who needs food stamps while her husband looks for a job. Where can she put her children if it looks as though she'll find a job first? An unemployed carpenter - husband acting as babysitter is a drain on the economy.

Title 20 of the latest Social Security Act mandates provision of the I&R service, said Helmuth.

To aid the eight centers, she also will publish a directory, a "completely self - supporting directory," she says to be sold to community groups at about $15 a copy. The loose - leaf guide will be updated quarterly listing new agencies and deleting old ones or changing addresses and services provided by existing groups.

"It's like a whole new aura that seems to be coming down around county social services," said one participant.

"Yes," answered Helmuth. "Mr. Perez wants to get as much of the available social services to the people as is funded. And on top of that, he wants to work with private community groups. Not to compete with them, but to provide people with access to all available social services."

Lawyers challenge action in holdup evidence search

LIVERMORE — Attorneys for two men accused of a motel shotgun holdup in Pleasanton may ask the court to throw out evidence and prisoner statements they say were the product of illegal search and seizure.

William Robert Reed, 36, 135 Madeanos, Pittsburg, and Terry Eugene Grant, 19, 183 Bella Vista Ave., West Pittsburg, were arrested Sept. 3 on charges of barging into the California 6 Motel, 5102 Hopyard Road, and robbing the manager, his wife and two guests of money, personal possessions and a rifle.

Reed's attorney, John W. Noonan, told the Times, "It is our contention that the general rules of interrogation were not followed."

He would not elaborate, but indicated he and Grant's public defender Les Chettle were entering motions of discovery to obtain prisoner statements, names and addresses of witnesses, statements of witnesses, physical evidence, lab reports, photographs and police reports.

"Without discovery it is difficult to determine what motions we must use," said Noonan, pointing out that the motions must be entered at this time and can be dropped later.

"We wanted to let the district attorney know these were areas of concern to us."

The "notice of motion to suppress evidence" was filed Thursday. The actual motion is scheduled for consideration 2 p.m., Sept. 22, when the two suspects are scheduled for a preliminary hearing.

A would - be guest of the motel, Richard L. Marshall, reportedly overheard the robbery and drove to the nearby Denny's Restaurant where he summoned CHP officers J. F. Wright and J. Pabst.

SR homeowners group nixes new home plan

SAN RAMON — The San Ramon Homeowners Association turned down a proposal to erect approximately 50 zero - lot - line units at the corner of Broadmoor and Montevideo.

L.B. Nelson Co. submitted the plan at an SRHA meeting Thursday evening.

"It was an excellent plan," said Susanna Schlendorf, president of SRHA. "The homes were well - designed and laid out, the developer was extremely cooperative and all of us agreed the plan was o.k. But the board felt we have to draw the line somewhere."

"The additional children that would be moving into these homes would cause serious overcrowding problems in our schools," said Schlendorf. "And we are already saturated. We felt we had to turn down the proposal in order to protect peoples' rights; especially parents with children."

The SRHA had approved a prior plan and building took place at the corner of Montevideo and Alcosta.

It was also announced at the meeting that A.C. bus service had begun Sept. 13 at Pine Valley Rd. and Montevideo. The bus stops under the freeway at Pine Valley, continues down Tareyton Ave., makes a stop at Montevideo and goes back out to San Ramon Valley Rd. This service is the result of months of effort. SRHA officials said the A.C. Transit Co. was exceptionally cooperative.

Constitution week declared

PLEASANTON — Today through September 23 will be Constitution Week in the city, Mayor Robert Philcox declared Monday night.

The observance celebrates the 189th anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution by the Constitutional Convention.

The proclamation signed by Philcox urges citizens to "pay special attention during that week to our Federal Constitution and the advantages of American Citizenship."

Gravel industry's plan

quarry areas will be "Class 1 land" available for major industrial use. Much of the balance will be "Class 2" and "Class 3" land that will remain up to 30 feet below grade.

Residential uses of any kind are pretty much ruled out within any part of that 3800 - acre expanse, a sharp departure from some of the earlier "lovely lakeside homes" concept put forward by Kaiser and by Rhodes & Jamieson.

What remains is largely a "chain of lakes" that would virtually link Shadow Cliffs Park to Vallecitos Road near Livermore in one great watery expanse. That chain would wind around a large island of reclaimed land on the north side of Stanley Boulevard, leaving intact a land mass for possible extension of Livermore Airport, and an "agricultural strip" flanking the south side of I - 580.

One more startling revelation was the possibility that "quarrying could go to depths of 200 feet below the present surface," but, Karn added, "present economics and permit restrictions hold quarrying to about 140 feet and less."

Asked, "Who is going to foot the cost of this plan?", Karn replied: "The industry will be doing this as part of their quarrying process." However Karn later clarified for The Times that this meant "filling the depleted areas as called for in the permits," but it would not provide for access roads or even bridges where they become necessary to go from island to island, or even from any point along I - 580 into the heart of that reclaimed area.

Still remaining is the drafting of an environmental report on this industrial plan, at a cost of tens of thousands of dollars. Karn indicated Alameda County would do that EIR, but Bill Fraley, county planning director added "we'll negotiate that cost."

Also unknown is whether this long - awaited proposal by the four extractors will satisfy local concerns as to water management, flood control, public access and public safety.

City of Livermore still has pending legal action that could throw the entire question of reclamation into the courts, and Pleasanton has that "interim agreement" allowing truck passage down First Street, an agreement that expires in October of 1977.

Karn acknowledged that this Valley is "the largest and the best source" of prime gravel for the 12 Bay Area counties, and there is some 400 million tons of material still to be extracted from this one source. At about $6 per ton delivered to Bay Area markets, that places the industry's local holdings at $2.4 billion through the year 2030.

Fire prevention on the hoof

If you come face - to - face with a drooling bovine while flying your kite up at Del Valle — just remember that the beefy creature is helping prevent fires.

Not by drooling, although that doesn't hurt either, but by keeping the grass chomped down short. The East Bay Regional Park District has been criticized for "getting into the cattle business," but EBRPD officials claim their grazing leases bring in extra income and help with fire prevention, as well as providing the California economy with a little "beefing up."

Park resource analyst Harry Reeves claims cattle grazing is never allowed to interfere with primary recreational use of the parklands. He says more than 2.5 million pounds of weigh have been put on cattle in the parks over the last 10 years.

"With most parks situated in proximity to urban and suburban communities, fire protection represents an obligation to society," Reeves reasons.

"Even moderate levels of grazing have enabled fire crews to stop fires more quickly than in ungrazed areas. And in 1976, so far, there have been no fires of note on grazed district lands."

Reeves added that guidelines are being prepared for control of ground squirrels and thistles.

Grazing is a form of vegetation management, he said, since it limits the advance of brush species and "thus contribute to the maintenance of a balance between brush, forest and open grassland plant communities." Deer and other wildlife benefit from this balance, he says.

EBRPD owns close to 8 per cent of the usable rangeland within its boundaries in Contra Costa and Alameda Counties. Those boundaries exclude large rural ranching areas, however, such as the Livermore area and the eastern part of Contra Costa County.

In the current fiscal year, park district officials plan on collecting $126,311 from leasing 22,065 acres of land.

Army's gym goes public

LIVERMORE — Opening ceremonies for the Camp Parks Gymnasium have been set for 4:30 p.m., Oct. 26.

Elected officials from each of the operating consortium agencies will be invited by the managing group, directors of the Livermore Area Recreation and Parks District.

Also scheduled to take part in the ceremonies are representatives of the U.S. Army, appointed officials and Congressman Fortney Stark.

The huge gymnasium (45,000 square feet) is being leased from the Army Corps of Engineers for use by Pleasanton Recreation Department, Valley Community Services District Recreation Department, Chabot College Valley Campus and LARPD.

Total projected shared cost including annual rent, utilities and maintenance and operation was estimated at $15,344, although an additional $800 has been budgeted for a list of 34 minor repairs plus replacement of several boards and refinishing of the gym floor.

Additional work includes replacement of locks, tiling, basketball standards, water fountain covers, thermostat covers and window panes.

LARPD officials also expect to install outdoor parking lot flood lights and telephones.

An LARPD official said the repairs should be completed before the ceremony.

The public has been invited to the opening ceremonies. Refreshments will be served during the program which includes a ceremony and tour of the facility.

East Bay Parks eyes Garin Ranch plans

Valley residents will be a half hour's ride from a big new recreation area to be going in soon in Hayward.

Plans for 696 - acre Garin Regional Park call for a 90 - acre "Valley Recreation Cluster" at the southern end including a "Little Ranch Camp" with facilities for day and night use, a mini - farm with barnyard animals and maybe even a youth hostel.

Two or three fishing piers would be built at 3½ - acre Jordan Pond.

A public hearing will be held on the big plan at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Hayward City Hall.

There will be parking for 445 cars and the park will have a maximum capacity of 1,500 people, as it is now planned. There is a possibility that a horse stable might be built by private interests outside the northeastern boundary of the park near 953 - foot Garin Peak.

Ultimately, a 2,049 - acre parkland area might emerge including Garin; adjacent 1,255 - acre Dry Creek Pioneer Ranch; a 63 - acre parcel given to the East Bay Regional Park District by Y.C. "Chet" Soda, which abuts the Dry Creek property; and the 35 - acre Garin Woods area, which EBRPD might lease from Cal State, Hayward.

Women's bank

The Western Women's Bank — the first retail bank organized and founded by women in Northern California — will officially open its doors at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 28 at 235 Front St., San Francisco.

Patricia H. Connolly, chairman of the board of directors, announced that the opening date marks the successful conclusion of two years of organizational efforts.

A community bank, Western Women's Bank was founded to act as a catalyst for the expanding role of women in business, finance the professions and public life.

"We felt that it was time that a bank offer women customers and employes the same opportunities that have been extended to men throughout the years," says Dorothy Kulvin, vice - chairman of the board of directors.

Embryonic Foothill council convenes

Parents, faculty and administrators of Foothill High School forming an Advisory Council met Wednesday night to discuss areas of concern to the parents.

Under the direction of Richard Carroll, principal of Foothill, the group, (approximately 15 in attendance) learned of the goals of the organization and set priorities of concern.

The origin and legal basis for an Advisory Council comes from the California State Legislature, Joint Committee on Education, 1971 AVJUHSD — Policy 1200, "Advisory groups shall be appointed to advise the board or an individual school."

The purpose of the council would be "shared responsibility of the public and the school in the education of children." Specifically, the purpose of the council would be to establish and review goals; assist in establishing priorities; identify school and student needs; relay observations and concern and provide input in the decision-making process."

The structure of the committee should include a broad representation of the parent population served by the school. Also there is to be representation from the teaching and classified staffs, the student population and the administrators.

Although the council is opened to all interested persons with no limit in number, the suggested voting membership is 12 parents or other members of the community; four students; two teachers and two classified employees.

The principles of school community planning and action include: The goal setting process be kept open to all points of view without domination or intimidation by any special interest group; not dwell on past deficiencies or lay blame, but to evolve a philosophy, identify needs; determine goals and establish priorities; cooperation and trust should be established among individuals and groups involved in the process; the interaction process must begin with concerns which have high priority for the people involved and the planning process should result in observable action.

With these goals, principles and purpose in mind, the group came up with open campus, smoking, 680 overpass and the lunch program as a few of the subjects they would like to discuss and see resolved in the near future.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 21 in the science wing of Foothill High at 7:30 p.m. On the agenda of this meeting will be the selection of a chairperson from the council. All interested parents, students and faculty are invited to attend.

The band plays on

A lasting memorial, a trophy case, was placed in the Foothill High School library in memory of Tami Ann Schlies of Pleasanton who died in February, a victim of cancer. The inscription at the top of the case reads: "In memory of Tami Ann Schlies; Dec. 18, 1960 - Feb. 17, 1976." The second inscription states: "A gift to Foothill High School from Tami's friends, Sept. 1976." The case contains the sweepstake trophy won by the band last year during their performance in Portland, a picture of Tami in her band uniform; her band hat and school letter; her instrument and a sheet of her music. In addition to the trophy, a $100 scholarship fund will be presented to a worthy student this year. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Schlies look at the case following the unveiling of it during special ceremonies held at the school on Tuesday evening, Sept. 15.

School bridge delayed

DANVILLE — First Greenbrook Elementary School wasn't finished on time, and now nearby residents of Danville South have learned a bridge to the new school isn't ready either.

That means more than 100 children will have to be bused or walk about a mile to school for perhaps as long as two months until a bridge is constructed.

San Ramon Valley Unified School District spokesmen say construction of the bridge will start next week and take about two months.

A contractor viewed the site Thursday afternoon and said construction should take only a few weeks if the fencing material is available.

The school board will formally approve the project Monday night.

The bridge was not part of the original construction plans, but was added later for about $20,000, a district spokesman said.

Parents of children who will be forced to take the bus plan to attend Monday's meeting to air their complaints, one disgruntled parent said.

A mere 100 yards separates Marques Court from the school, yet in between lies a cement-lined canal and some railroad tracks, and that's where the problem is, said Dorothy Trantina, Greenbrook principal.

"It's not that someone doesn't want the bridge to be built," she said.

It's just that it took the district considerable time to get an easement from Southern Pacific for the bridge, she explained.

Mrs. Trantina said probably far less than one-third of the school's 650 students will be affected by the delay in building the bridge.

The locked gate off Marques Court, where the bridge will be constructed in Danville South, has become an attraction in the last few days, nearby residents complain.

Youngsters have broken off the gate lock repeatedly, dug holes under the chain link fences and even tore one fence from its pole, one resident said, pointing out two young children playing near the canal.

Many parents are also stopping by to see if construction of the bridge has started, he added.

Janelle Hornbeck, who has a 6-year-old attending Greenbrook, said some parents are very upset that the district allowed the delay in construction.

What irks her is the money the district will have to spend because of delays at Greenbrook.

Because of a contractor's strike, the opening of school is delayed until Monday, which means it will cost the district more money to keep food service and transportation workers on the job the extra eight days of school Greenbrook students must make up.

The district also faces the unexpected expense of busing students.

That's money the district could have used to landscape the school, Mrs. Hornbeck said.

School trustees have told parents that if they want the school landscaped, they'll have to pay for it themselves because the district can't afford it, she said.

"We've suffered enormous tax increases and are feeling the pressures ourselves," she added.

Students may visit Indian center

LIVERMORE — Livermore's American Indian Center, at 557 North Livermore Ave., will be open for tours by local students on Sept. 23 and 24 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in observance of American Indian Day.

The center is sponsored by the Livermore Unified School District American Indian Parent Committee and federally funded with a $36,000 grant.

On display for two days will be Indian jewelry, pottery, clothing, baskets, grinding rocks, copies of official un-honored land claims, books, magazines, tapes on Indian culture and people, taped chants and music, breadmaking demonstration, shawl - making demonstration, samples of Indian food and a short history of the Navajo tribe.

Reservations and more information may be obtained from Mrs. Jacque Earhart at 447-5005.

Summit

Dr. Barbara Mertes, dean of Chabot College's Valley Campus, points out the school's future to Elizabeth Manning Deedy, chairperson of the California Community Colleges board of governors. Mrs. Deedy spoke to the Valley Campus faculty Friday in a gathering prior to the opening classes this week.

Court nixes minority plan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a landmark decision, the California Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional a University of California special admissions program for minorities.

The court said Thursday that discrimination against the majority is as illegal as discrimination against minorities.

The ruling, which applies to all public schools in California with limited enrollments, sets the stage for a possible legal fight before the U.S. Supreme Court over the issue of preferential treatment of minorities and use of quotas to counteract discrimination.

The State Supreme Court ruled in a case involving a white man who contended he was the victim of reverse discrimination when he was denied admission to the Medical School at the University of California's Davis campus in 1973 and 1974.

Allan Bakke, now 36 and an engineer in Sunnyvale, argued in his suit that he was discriminated against because the medical school had preferentials admission standards for nonwhite applicants.

A Yolo County Superior Court ruled in Bakke's favor, and the state Supreme Court upheld that decision with a 6-to-1 vote.

Donald L. Reidhaar, general counsel for the University of California regents, said the latest decision probably will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court. He said all minority students accepted by the university's professional schools are qualified for admission.

Reidhaar said the court's ruling would not affect minority students already admitted to the university.

The Supreme Court denied Bakke's request that the university be ordered to admit him to medical school. It returned that part of the case to Yolo County Superior Court, which will determine whether Bakke would have been admitted to medical school if there had been no special admissions program.

Bakke's attorney, Reynold H. Colvin, said he believed that his client still wants to enter medical school.

Woodcock said earlier that UAW Vice President Ken Bannon and McKenna had been discussing "scheduling problems" in the union's reduced worktime proposal.

The company rejected the UAW's demand that workers get an additional 12 paid days off each year, saying such a plan would hamper its ability to schedule production.

Meanwhile, the company said picketing at 102 facilities in 22 states remained peaceful as the third nationwide walkout in Ford's history completed its second full day without incident. Auto output at the nation's No. 2 car maker has been halted since midnight Tuesday.

Steam engine collection travels with him

By LILLY AULT

He built his first engine out of tin cans when he was only 10 years old and Bill Knight of Oak Creek Drive, Pleasanton, hasn't stopped building those engines yet. However, the machines are much more sophisticated now.

The naturally mechanically talented father of two has 40 units of steam and gas engines of all sizes, shapes and colors. Every one of his creations actually runs and could perform the job for which it was intended, but Knight prefers to keep the "beauties" and add them to his collection.

He has one machine for which he was offered $6,000, but won't part with it for the world as it took he and his son, then only 11 years old, two and a half years to build it. It weighs 750 pounds, 125 pounds per square inch, has a three and half horsepower engine and was built from a 1915 blueprint.

The materials used today by this energetic gentleman are old parts, bits and pieces which he gathers from various places, shapes into the desired design and beautifully paints the finished product.

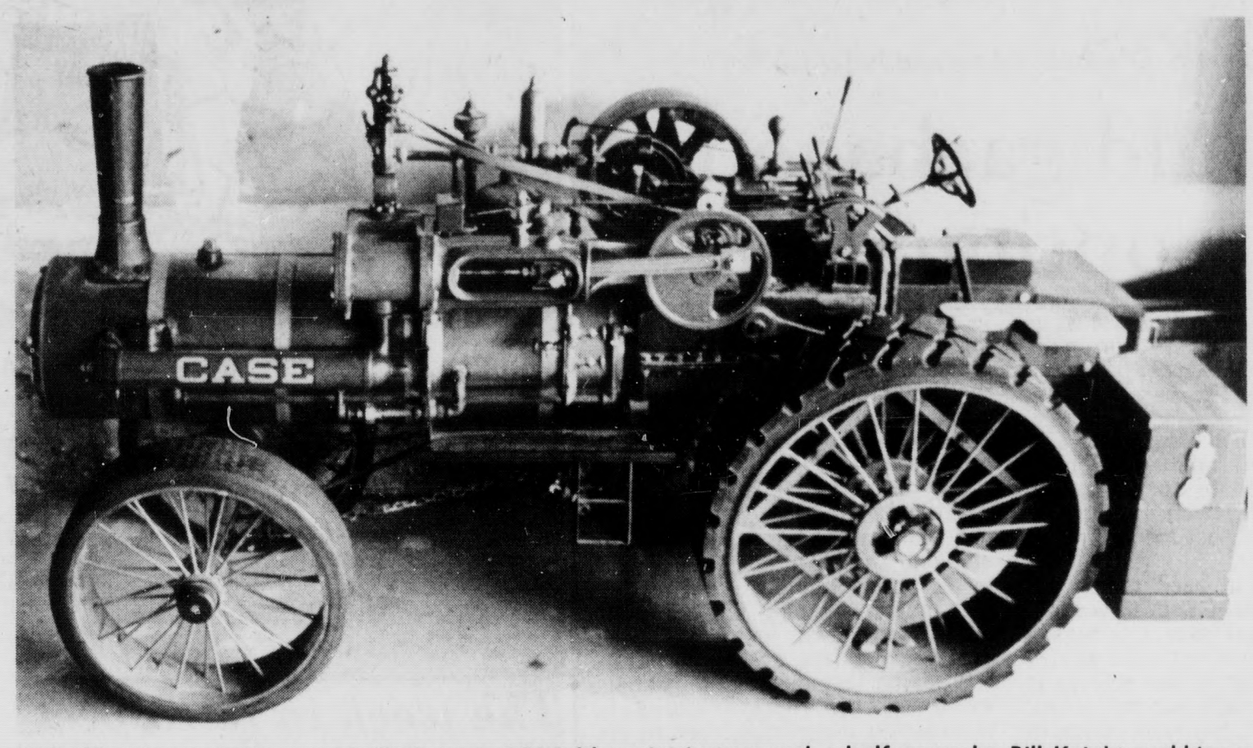
For the last 10 years, off and on, Knight has been working on his model six foot long boat. Each blank was individually cut and carved and placed in its proper place to form the shape. Hand carving puts the delicate illustrations in their proper scale. A twin cylinder engine will supply the energy for the boat to be steam radio controlled.

"I generally have five to six projects going at the same time," admits Knight. "Sometimes it becomes difficult to finish what I'm working on as I have been employed with the same company for 27 years and have had to move 17 times," he said. "Seems I just get my workshop in order and involved in my hobby then I'm transferred to another location."

This in no way discourages the steam engine lover from keeping his hobby rolling. The parts, pieces and bits are packed along with all the rest of the housewares. "I enjoy my work and my hobby," he says.

His neat, clean and well-organized workshop, unfortunately, has to remain behind, but he just rolls up his sleeves wherever he lands and builds himself another one.

It is Knight's estimation that there are approximately 20 to 30 thousand people interested in model steam engines. "It's a field with a language all its own," he says. Magazines show various engines to keep the enthusiasts wits sharp as they can pick their choice and send for the blueprints.



Valuable steam engine was built from a 1915 blueprint in two and a half years by Bill Knight and his son.

Knight's display of engines has been shown at many fairs and he has walked away with top honors at every show. As far as he knows, Knight thinks he has one of the largest collections of engines in the world.

Although building steam engines has stayed with Knight since he was a youngster, other endeavors also received his attention. He built and flew his own airplane at the age of 17 and went the route of motorcycles, boats and cars. "I use to restore old cars," he said, "but it became too expensive and required a lot of space so I gave it up."

With his mechanical ability, Knight has no fear of his home being broken into as he has security devises throughout the house that a touch would off. "That plus our vicious dog," he says, "should discourage any entrants, but if it doesn't, the victim is traveling at his own risk not knowing what will go off where and how."

The 18 month resident of Pleasanton, states that no matter where his job might carry him in the future, he would like to retire in Pleasanton.

Knight thoroughly enjoys displaying his collection and would be more than happy to show them to any Scout groups, organizations or anyone who might be interested in seeing what he has accomplished. He may be contacted by calling his home at 846-7116.

Should garbage be optional

Mayor Helen Tirsell informs us that "No issue during my term on the Livermore city council has so stirred up the people as this flap over garbage collection."

We can recall a Pleasanton city council election some years back when one candidate ran on a platform of garbage collection frequency and cost. He lost, but the campaign goes on.

It has always amazed us how the disposal of garbage gets to become such an emotional issue. One reason is that collection of our solid wastes and the frequency of that service is optional. The people are not given, and none expect, any such option in connecting to the local sewer system for disposal of those wastes. You can't even occupy an urban center dwelling without proof of a water service hookup.

It is because of this "personal choice" in the matter of garbage service that some of our citizens choose to avoid the entire hassle by disposing of their own kitchen wastes ... by burning, by burying, or by dumping that junk onto the nearest vacant lot or rural roadside. None of which are happy alternatives to an already volatile situation.

City managers will tell you that "Making garbage collection mandatory and placing it on everyone's tax bill is no answer at all." But they offer no such argument for sewer service or for sweeping the street, for maintaining parks or for recreation everybody shares, everybody pays.

It seems logical that the garbage we create, from whatever source and to whatever magnitude, must be disposed of. The only community concern is for total efficiency and fair cost. But that is the same standard we apply to all our municipal services, all of which areand community - wide.

So why is garbage collection different?

Hot water line

The current debate within that Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency over board member Glen Dahlbacka's one - man rebellion is, in our opinion, a titanic waste of time. It is also childish, and may even be unconstitutional.

While the LAVWMA board majority might have reason to be unhappy over Dahlbacka's latter - day enlightenment as to that great pipe line's shortcomings, most observers would find the Livermore councilman's stand without surprise. The headlines would be much bolder, surely, if Glen Dahlbacka were to suddenly take a position that even hinted at favoring growth, residential, industrial or political.

But it is not Dahlbacka's personal feelings that the Valley populace is concerned with right now, any more than it is Ron Hyde's proclaimed dedication to that LAVWMA Line.

What we are faced with is a November ballot question that is heralded as "the culmination of 20 years of study and concern." On the one hand we are assured the great sewer line concept is "environmentally sound." On the other hand we are warned "it's either this, or a stiff state fine every day until we solve the effluent discharge problem."

The key point in all this is that the great majority of Valley residents are going to approach that pipe line question with a deep concern for the environment, an even greater concern for their own economic status, and secondarily the Valley's economic health.

Councilman Dahlbacka and the Don Miller Brigade make a mistake if they believe they are the sole defenders of the Valley's environment. (Miller found that out in his unsuccessful bid for a Zone 7 post.)

Hyde, Philcox, Tirsell et al are in error if they believe they have all the answers, the only answers, to "a sound economic future for this Valley."

Where the people are confused is in how to achieve that economic stability while still preserving our environmental integrity. It is the job of LAVWMA and its separate members to give us those facts, as clearly and as concisely as possible, in the time remaining before that Nov. 2 ballot.

You have just six weeks to go, ladies and gentlemen of LAVWMA. Let's knock off the personality bit and get down to basics.

The week in retrospect

Some choice!

Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr. this week endorsed Democrat David Harris for Congress, characterizing the former Stanford University student leader and husband of folk singer Joan Baez as a "candidate with new blood and strong convictions."

Harris is running for election from the 12th District (lower San Francisco Peninsula) against Republican incumbent Paul McCloskey.

That's quite a choice the voters in the 12th District have! Something akin to being attacked by dogs versus a hit'n run accident.

The good burghers of the lower peninsula could do without both.

"Government can get stale and very removed from ordinary people," Brown said in a letter released by Harris' staff. "That is why every so often it is good to make a change. New blood. New ideas. Strong convictions. That's David Harris and that is why I think he would make an excellent congressman," intoned Brown.

But what would Brown know about governing.?

Such statements from a man who has spent the better part of his tenure campaigning in eastern and midwestern states are hard to accept seriously.

Isn't Harris the fellow who was an anti-war activist, espousing a line that made him welcome in Hanoi, Peking and backyard parties of the limousine liberals?

And isn't McCloskey the Congressman who was in the vanguard of those tieing the can to Richard Nixon— and who kept - on - truckin' when Gerald Ford took office — not knowing that Gerald R. is a pretty solid guy doing one hell of a job considering what's in residence on The Hill.

Maybe we in the valley should be thankful for our "choice"— Rep. Fortney Stark versus Jim Mills.

Whatzit vs. whozit.

Harris is straight out of the Rubin - Hayden - Hoffman mold.

We know what happened to Hayden. Lucky man lost to Sen. John Tunney and now can spend fulltime with his wife, Zany Janey Fonda.

Rubin and Hoffman haven't surfaced much since their salad days in Chicago.

But their banner is being carried on, at least here in the Bay Area, by the likes of Dellums, the Burton brothers, Stark (on ocassion) and now David Harris.

I have never liked the socialist, racist and totalitarian issues espoused by the likes of Dellums and the Burtons, and would work for their defeat if I lived in any one of their districts.

Ditto for Harris.

But if I knew something more about Mr. Mills, and could be convinced he would help this valley in Congress, I would vote for him.

I cannot in all conscience support Mr. Stark.

More garbage

Copy of a letter to —
Mayor Helen Tirsell:

Since the cessation of twice weekly garbage pickup, the fly problem in Livermore has become overwhelming. I cannot send my little boy out to play with a lolly pop or ice cream as he quickly becomes covered with sickly flies. We have maggots in the garbage, and are unable to use our backyard and patio.

My neighbors on Geneva Street feel as strongly as I do that garbage pickup must be resumed twice a week for the summer months and fly season. If you need proof of this, a petition can be circulated around Sunset East to this effect.

How ludicrous that the garbage rate increased at the same time that service decreased. This problem is the job of City Council to solve.

You are as aware as I am of the taxes that are paid by residents of Livermore. We pay taxes so that this type of problem can be avoided.

Not only is the fly problem discusting, but the sweeper operates erratically and not often enough. Last week I called City Hall and was told the sweeper would be by on Friday morning. He came by on Thursday afternoon. Many of us have to move cars in front in order to have the street properly swept. We cannot cooperate if we don't know when the sweeper is coming.

I will be very disappointed in Livermore, and the City Council, if this problem cannot be resolved.

Patricia J. Barney

A football hero

All eyes of the prep football world, well at least three pairs for sure, will be on Weaverville, Calif. Friday when the mighty Trinity High Wolves take on Happy Camp High.

Actually, it marks the high school sports debut of the nephew.

Like many teenagers, the kid is growing like a weed and 101 per cent confident of his abilities. That confidence will probably be moderated after a few whacks by his super-confident peers.

But why be a wet blanket, let the kid learn.

Listed as a wide receiver and defensive halfback, he started his first organized football drills weighing about 135 and 5-10 in height.

What with all the exercise and the "training table," I figure one kid shouldn't be more than 6-3 and 180 by game time.

But just as interesting as watching a family member spread his wings as a fledgling athlete is the locale of the competition.

Weaverville is not exactly a population center in this state.

For those wondering "where the h--- is Weaverville," its about 40 miles north of Redding, which is about four hours drive north of the valley.

The high school, Trinity, is one of the bigger ones in the northern boonies. Happy Camp is much smaller. Maybe 200 kids in the whole school. When the Happy Camp High School marching band finishes the pre-game show it goes into the locker room and suits up for the game.

THAT'S how small Happy Camp is!

The Weaverville kids play some of the "biggies", too. Weed, Burney, Modoc and Hayfork.

Hayfork is the big rival. Nothing like beating those dumb loggers from the sticks....

There's just one problem. If the nephew comes through the Happy Camp game with flying colors, it'll probably mean another trip in two weeks to watch him against Burney....or was it Melvin High.

round the town

That judge's ruling which opened up professional football to the betting public came as quite a shock to Pete Rozelle, the football commish, and to Mrs. Marybelle Uptight of Prohibition, Missouri. Miz Marybelle avowed as she had lived these 103 years without tobacco, whiskey or gambling, and she wasn't about to start now.

I resolved to gain the rest of the nation's reaction to this important question, and so set forth on a sort of door - to - door, cross - country check. The following are my unabridged, unadulterated quotes from ...

Farley Farout of Yreka — "Betting on professional football? Why of course, been doing it for years. Great sport. What's that you say? It ain't legal yet in California? The heck you say! Folks here in Siskiyou County been betting on anything and everything far back as I can recollect. Why, just last week the sheriff laid me two - to - one odds that his rooster could beat the district attorney's cock even with one spur tied behind it's back ...."

I figured that was enough of that, and headed across the border into Idaho. It was at Pete's Place in Pocatello that I encountered ...

Ham Hamstrung, former athlete — "It's legal to bet on National Football League games, you say? Well now, if you tell me what the NFL is, sonny, then I'll tell you whether I think it should be legal or not. Us Pocatellans don't dabble much in them big - city sports. We stick pretty much to the local action. Pocatello High vusus Burley High, that sort of thing. Course we're a lot bigger than Burley so we got to give them Burleyites odds. Keeps 'em coming back for more, if you know I mean, heh heh."

Feeling I needed a more cosmopolitan view of this volatile question on betting in pro sports, I swung down into Nevada. It was just outside of Reno that I encountered this lovely roadside stop that seemed an inviting place for a cool drink. It was there I met ...

Miss Goldie Coyote, unaligned citizen — "Why you little devil," Goldie said, poking me in the rib cage, "you mean to tell me they're MAKING BET on all these professional pursuits now? Why me and my girls ain't never heard of such a thing! We've had football team owners here and governors here and even judges, and one thing they always say as soon they as they enter my place, they say — 'Now Goldie, I don't want to talk religion, money or politics.' I can't imagine one of 'em laying two fives on Lula Hotpants scoring ..."

I hastened to correct Miss Goldie's ideas on the kind of professional sports I was talking about, but failing that I headed inland. It was in Junction City, Kansas that I cornered ...

Homer Boobtube, Middle American — "Gambling is as American as Kansas beef or Harry Truman," Homer told me. "Why, life itself is a gamble ... you see the 'Miss America CONTEST' the other night? Or how about "You Bet Your Life!' Then there's the '$25,000 Pyramid,' and of course for the swingers who can stay up until 8 o'clock, Central Time, we get 'Hollywood Squares.' But most nights we're in bed by that hour."

Was Homer suggesting that the American spirit of free enterprise is best exemplified in those tv'd game shows?

"What better way to proclaim the American spirit than on prime time television from 6 to 8 p.m.," Homer insisted. "We start every evening off with Walter Cornkite, and end with 'Little House on The Prairie.' And it's like I say, young feller, life's a gamble, no matter what channel you're watchin'."

No survey of the American attitude on gambling could be complete without a check of the eastern seabord. I found Mr. and Mrs. Andrew C. Board in their house boat anchored just off Martha's Vineyard, in Boston country, naturally. "Gambling?" Mr. Board said, looking rather shocked. "You don't mean to infer, sir, that we C. Boards would dabble in such unclean pursuits as wagering on football players!"

I assured Mr. Board that was not my intent, but sought only his response to this national trend ...

"Gambling is for peasants and bus drivers," Mr. Board interrupted. "We Boards are noted rather for our charitable works, for the five factories we own and for our interest in politics."

Was it possible that the Honorable Knot E. Board who is now challenging Senator Kennedy for that Congressional seat is from Andrew C. Board's family?

"He's a distant nephew, and he's an idiot," Mr. Board said. "Five will get you twenty in any of the Tammany Hall circles that Knot E. is going to get waxed in this election. Those aren't my kind of odds," he added, cutting my line and leaving me adrift on Nantucket Sound.

Research

There's a liquor store two blocks from the office featuring 73 different slick porno magazines.

Select members of our staff spent hours last week poring over those editions to give you an accurate count. We rechecked six, seven, eight times so the public will be able to comprehend the breadth and scope of the dirty book industry.

Take it from our exhausted researchers, the industry is booming. Our clinical analysis turned up these facts: there are more kinky periodicals than ever before, and they're raunchier than ever.

Those glossy-cover, full-color tomes have titles like "Swinging Singles," "Mixed Doubles," and "Atrocities of the Flesh."

Things are so far afield that "Playboy," now carries little more impact than "Popular Mechanics." It's stocked on the bottom shelf, right next to "Children's Bible Stories." In the old days it was a man and a woman. In today's magazines, it's a man, a woman, and a gnu.

This eye-opening research data led the investigative team to one conclusion. The country is very sex conscious. To what extent, we're not sure. One expert, though, has attempted to plot sexual awareness on a timetable.

He has formulated a frequency chart indicating just how much we think about you-know-what. According to the expert, a young man in his mid-20's entertains sexual thoughts once every 60 seconds. If that's true, the publisher ought to slash my salary. He doesn't get my full attention.

But is this astounding hypothesis accurate? Well, in keeping with the clinical posture of the piece, let's spend the rest of our time together finding out.

Note any aberrations in the author's thought process. Plot their frequency. Decide for yourself if he's that once-a-minute guy, a candidate for a monastic retreat, or a threat to society.

From the sprawling news racks wall - papered with bare chests, it's obvious we're hinking sex. It's also apparent we want more style in our sex.

(Hey, Miss Jones in bookeeping has the sweater on again. Shrunk, too. One minute, 48 seconds.)

Those schlocky pulp sex sheets are fine for North Beach and other cultural centers around the big cities. But the gourmet wants quality in his girlie book. The publishers are responding to demand.

Today's naughty magazines employ the finest photographers. They use the best in slick paper stock. Their glorious color spreads are run on expensive rotogravure presses.

(Oh boy. Cindy in classified just dropped her pencil under the desk again. Look at her stretch. One minute 53 seconds.)

Publishing houses realize the glut of competition. They now appeal to discriminating tastes, aiming at that segment of the market which refuses to skulk around a bus station for reading material.

(Here it comes. Marge is fuming again. I love it when she talks dirty. One minute, two seconds.)

That explains the move into suburban market places, and the bright, dressed up appearance of the front pages.

(Alice is yawning again. Somebody make her stop. 48 seconds.)

T The encouraging note (How does she fit through that narrow hallway? 30 seconds) for anti-smut forces, is that the industry has peaked.

(Let me grab, er mark that for you, Miss Jones. Twenty seconds.)

(Ah, Cindy, my pencil seems to have fallen. Can you reach it? Six seconds.)

Wanna go to the liquor store, Miss Jones?

Internal beefs

Editor, The Times:

In the past, water plant operators of Alameda County (Zone 7) have been dissatisfied with the low wages paid by the County. It has recently been revealed that these same operators refused a substantial increase in pay, and each and every operator joined the Alameda County strike for the duration.

It seems to me, there must be other internal problems not known. For instance: Are employee - management relations what they should be? Is there a morale problem among operators? Are working conditions up to par?

Is the Zone 7 board aware of any existing problems and if so, are they taking an active interest in solving them?

As a resident of the Livermore Valley and a water consumer concerned about watr quality and the Zone 7 water system, I would like to know why every operator was on strike.

For Sunday, Sept. 19, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A well-meaning friend may try to get you interested in a harebrained venture today that could cost you each a pretty penny.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're better at handling business situations early in the day than you will be later. Don't let time get away from you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have a tendency today to alter at the last minute plans you've carefully considered. The changes may not work to your benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Financial conditions are mixed for you today. You have the potential to make gains as well as suffer reverses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tell it like it is today. You could send your listeners down the wrong road if you add extraneous information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A person in a position to help may work out something advantageous to you today. He's likely to withdraw the offer if you sound off to pals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A well-heeled friend could cost you money today if you try to keep up with the way he spends. Don't try to match his extravagance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your chances of success are extra-promising today — except in something you would do out of sheer impulse.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It is of paramount importance to have faith in your ideas today. Should self-doubts surface momentarily, dismiss them quickly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be alert for unusual maneuvers from one with whom you are doing business today. He could be contemplating a coup to catch you off-guard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Heed only the advice of those you know and trust today. Someone you met only recently could innocently pass off fool's gold in the guise of precious metal.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) What you do today you will do well. The major hang-up is that you have an inclination to leave only half done that which you started.

Valley Action Forum

Unit backs SRV plan

DANVILLE — The Valley Action Forum (VAF) approved the new draft of the proposed general plan and environmental impact report.

They have agreed to support it but offered comments and concerns in a letter to the Contra Costa Planning Commission.

One concern was the projected maximum growth to 80,000 residents by 1990 will have a negative impact on the lifestyle and quality of life in the San Ramon Valley. It was suggested that many of the present problems, especially with schools and taxes, are a consequence of the need for rapid expansion of facilities to handle increasing population.

To reduce the problem it was suggested that the inner valley remain undeveloped until 1990. This was based on the fact there is presently no development east of lower Dougherty Hills and seismic stability of the land is uncertain.

It was also suggested an area shown as low density development in the general plan map should be changed to Country Estate.

A request was made for a more detailed map showing hills and ridges throughout the valley. The available map (8, page 44) was not thought to be detailed enough to clearly show boundaries of protected areas. It was also thought the map ignored many minor ridges which have significant visual impact on the valley.

The subject of air quality and other vital areas of public health were considered lacking in the Goals and Objectives section. The VAF thought the following statement should be included: "To protect and enhance the public health, safety and welfare."

In addition they want a subsection added discussing such items as air quality, noise pollution, seismic safety, l and flood control.

They felt the study of air quality was of prime importance in view of the projected population expansion.

Finally, they commented that the general plan could not be satisfactorily implemented in the absence of were considered lacking in the Goals and Objectives section. The VAF thought the following statement should be included: "To protect and enhance the public health, safety and welfare."

Finally, they commented that the general plan could not be satisfactorily implemented in the absence of strong ordinances. It was suggested the general plan require immediate preparation of ordinances important to its success.

Lawyer Madis fined in stolen goods case

David S. Madis, valley attorney who was suspended by the State Bar Association, has been placed on three years probation and fined $500 after pleading guilty to a charge of attempting to receive stolen property.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Hugh Koford has ordered Madis to provide 120 hours of volunteer work for the county social services agencies during the next three months as a part of the sentence.

Madis was arrested Jan. 17, 1975, after he purchased a diamond ring and sterling silver table settings from an undercover policeman.

The original felony charge was reduced to a misdemeanor in superior court when the attorney agreed to plead guilty. With the lesser charge standing as a misdemeanor Madis will be permitted to apply for reinstatement to the practice of law.

Burglar suspect pleads

LIVERMORE — Jacob Allen Chambers, 28, of 1450 Trestle Glen, Oakland, pleaded not guilty Wednesday to charges of breaking into the Romley's Market, 11825 Dublin Blvd., Dublin.

He was arrested in the early hours of Aug. 9 at the Romley parking lot. Police said the front door window of the store had been smashed. On the floor inside they found five burlap sacks containing approximately 100 bottles of liquor.

Police also reportedly confiscated a 45 caliber pistol from Chambers.

His $4,500 bail was exonerated and he was released on his own recognizance pending further municipal court hearings.

In other court action, Vincent Dewey Looking, 32, of 482 Bartlett, Hayward, was arraigned on charges he escaped from Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center May 10.

Prison officials claim Looking cut a window screen near his bed during the night.

He is scheduled to enter a plea today.

Union Label

About 40 per cent of all professionals, not counting those self-employed or managers, are now represented by collective bargaining agents. This compares with 25 per cent of all U.S. workers.

But one group of professionals, scientists and engineers, appear to be bucking the trend. The proportion of unionized engineers and scientists is estimated at only 5 per cent, which hasn't changed much over the last 20 years.

Future Del Valle route hits snag

PLEASANTON — The dream of relocating the future path of the Del Valle Parkway along the Arroyo Del Valle from Hopyard Road to the Santa Rita Road - Main Street area has hit a snag.

City officials have been talking to Morrison Homes, which wants to build homes on 23 acres near the arroyo, about the possibility of relocating the future roadway.

However, a property owner nearby, who already has been granted zoning to build 36 apartments, has dedicated his portion of the future parkway and he won't reverse that action.

Practically speaking, this means that the parkway may not be relocated to the south bank of the arroyo because it will be impossibie to get around the man's property.

Hope remains, though. The committee is still looking at alternatives, although it "looks difficult at this moment," said Councilman William Herlihy.

Planning Commissioner David Shepherd has called on the city to step up its priorities for construction of the entire Del Valle Parkway. The spot most needed is the leg between First Street and Vintage Hills because that would take the traffic congestion off Vineyard Avenue, the main feeder street for the east side of Vintage Hills, he told fellow commissioners at their last meeting.

Shepherd would like to see work being on the parkway in two or three years, not the 10 or 20 years predicted by other city officials some time ago. The commission will have a joint meeting soon with the city council and Shepherd intends to raise the point then.

Asked about Shepherd's comments, Herlihy said they are well taken, but financing would be difficult to obtain. He thinks it's too optimistic to think in terms of beginning construction in two or three years.

The city's growth management plan indicates the city's growth rate and adding major capital improvements will be bound by that timebtable to a great degree, said Herlihy.

Claudia Nemir group organizes in Danville

DANVILLE — The Claudia Nemir Town Council Committee was formed this week.

Nemir recently resigned as vice - chairman of Taxpayers for Local Control Through Incorporation. Now she is appearing as a candidate for a council seat on the Nov. 2 ballot when incorporation of the San Ramon Valley is to be decided.

Bethany Hall of Danville is serving as Scheduling Coordinator. Hall is President of San Ramon High Shool PTA and has been a leading participant in the Danville - Alamo branch of American Association of University Women.

Melvin W. Young of Danville is campaign treasurer. Young is a retired comptroller for Rheem Manufacturing Company of Richmond.

Public Relations will be directed by Joan Marsh of San Ramon. She was co - chairman of the San Ramon Valley Citizens for Schools Committee and has been active in the Danville - Alamo branch of AAUW.

Contributions may be mailed to Claudia Nemir Town Council Committee, 101 Montair Dr., Danville, 94526.

Raymond wins support

Valerie Raymond, running for the first district supervisorial seat currently held by John Murphy, has received the endorsement of KCBS radio.

KCBS said the district needs "better transportation, better health care services, and more accessible and detail - oriented county government."

"Although an 'unproven quantity as supervisor' we think she's proven herself well as a citizen involved in many levels of government," KCBS said. "It's time for change. Not change just for the sake of change. But Alameda County needs a supervisor with the best insight and foresight to serve that district. KCBS think Valerie Raymond is the best choice."

Beef to bolster vote campaigner

DANVILLE — A side of Black Angus beef will go to a lucky contributor to Eric Hasseltine's campaign for fifth district supervisor.

Hasseltine, a Danville engineer, said the steer is being donated to his campaign by Robert Dal Porto, Oakley rancher. Tickets at 50 cents each will be sold throughout the campaign, and the prize will be awarded on election night, Nov. 2.

Other information on the campaign can be obtained by calling Hasseltine headquarters in Danville at 820-ERIC.

Hasseltine is in the run-off for election for the seat being vacated by Edmund Linscheid, Pittsburg.

SR cityhood group starts speaker plan

DANVILLE — Taxpayers for Local Control has established a Speakers' Bureau to provide information on incorporation to San Ramon Valley residents.

Speakers are available to organizations and neighborhood groups.

Each speaker will display an area map and informational charts covering various phases of incorporation. Some phases include: reasons for incorporating, what the town government would be responsible for, the increase in police protection and a proposed budget.

Any organization or neighborhood group may make arrangements for a speaker by calling Ralph Cozine at 837-3035.

The current schedule for Speakers' Bureau is: Thursday, Sept. 16, Danville Women's Club, 242 Linda Mesa, 12:30 luncheon meeting, Speaker: Beverly Lane.

Friday, Sept. 17, General Plan Review Committee, Thomas Randlett residence, 645 Morninghome Rd., Danville, 8:30 p.m., Speakers: Ralph Cozine, Ken Frank, Beverly Lane.

Monday, Sept. 20, Whitegate Homeowners Association, Monte Vista High School, 7 p.m., Speaker: Ralph Cozine.

Tuesday, Sept. 21, Coffee, 8 p.m., Lesley Sweeney residence, 231 San Rey Place, Danville, Speaker: Jack Marzluft. Anyone wishing to attend may call Mrs. Sweeney, 820-3198.

Yes vote could spring housing

PLEASANTON — If the LAVWMA pipeline is constructed and things work out all right, Valley Community Services District may be able to give the Housing Authority the 150 new sewer connections it has been seeking for many years.

That was the word yesterday from VCSD Director Lila Euler and Housing Authority Executive Director Michael Parsons.

VCSD has not made any outright promises for the 150 connections, because the board fears a future lawsuit if it made a commitment, Euler told The Times yesterday.

However, "If everything falls in place, we will be able to help them," said Euler. "We think their goal of providing modern low - income housing is a worthwhile goal for the valley.

"We met with them a year ago and talked then about annexing Komandorski Village. Now we are talking more in terms of providing service to them through a contract, if that's possible. It would be much simpler than annexing the area, because then we would have to deal with several agencies, including the Local Agency Formation Commission.

"In terms of making promises, we are very guarded. We were positive and optimistic and if everything falls in place for us, we will be able to help them."

The key for everything falling in place is passage of the LAVWMA pipeline, whose financing will be on the ballot this November, Euler acknowledged. "We can have a lot of capacity in our plant, but without the clean water plan, we wouldn't be able to discharge to the plant's total capacity," said Euler.

The Housing Authority recently received an extension of Komandorski Village's life to January 1, 1979. Wilp the two - year extension be enough time, assuming "everything falls into place"?

"By 1979 would be very close, but maybe by 1980 it could be done," said Euler. The Legislature has said it could grant one more extension if the Housing Authority is close to accomplishing the replacement at the January 1, 1979 deadline.

The Housing Authiority needs to decide now where low - income housing will be located and where it will get the funding for it, said Euler. The Housing Authority has organized committees among its membership to get the replacement housing program under way. The committees will report their findings at a special Housing Authority meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at Kottinger Place.

Commissioners at their meeting Wednesday night named Commissioner Christine Pearson as the liaison with the Human Resources Committee which is being formed by the city. The new committee will replace the Community Concerns Committee and will have special emphasis in the area of social services.

Commissioners also approved contracting with Jo Betty Allen to conduct the annual audit of the Housing books.

Pipeline arguments filed

Arguments have been filed by both sides on the proposed $28 million cross - valley wastewater pipeline which will be voted on by valley residents Nov. 2.

The proponents' argument was signed by all six representatives to the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), Chairman Robert Philcox, Ron Hyde, Dale Turner, Lila Euler, Helen Tirsell, and Ken Mercer.

The opposing argument was signed by LAVWMA alternate Glen Dahlbacka, Zone 7 water management board directors Richard Ryon and Robert Pearson, and Ed Lee, a former member of the Valley Community Services District Parks and Recreation Board.

For

The Cities of Livermore and Pleasanton and Valley Community Services District are under a mandate by state and federal authorities to eliminate the disposal of our treated wastewater into Alameda Creek. To accomplish this task we jointly created the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA). This agency is proposing to construct a pipeline to carry our treated wastewater to San Francisco Bay. The proposed project has received approval from all state and federal agencies and now qualifies for funding for 87½ per cent of the eligible project costs. These funds may not be available in the future and inflation will drastically increase the cost of the project if built later.

The proposed pipeline has been designed to allow the valley to remain a viable area in which to reside and work. A growth rate of approximately 2 per cent per year for the next twenty years (1996) will be accommodated by the pipeline. In addition, approximately one-fifth of the pipeline's capacity (4.2 million gallons per day of the 19.72 million gallons per day pipeline capacity) will be purchased by and reserved for industrial use by the Cities of Livermore and Pleasanton in order to encourage more jobs for valley residents.

The LAVWMA project was the result of an extensive study. Fifteen alternatives for solving the common wastewater problem were studied, including past projects for retaining the wastewater in the valley. The present project was selected as being the most feasible of all of the alternatives studied and after conducting an extensive environmental impact study which was subject to comments by the public.

The LAVWMA Board of Directors and its participating agencies urge your favorable consideration of the proposed ballot measure.

Against

We urge a NO vote on this measure because; the capacity is excessive, there are hidden costs which won't be revealed until after the election and there are no guarantees the project will be used as the ballot argument states. Why raise your taxes to subsidize residential developers?

The 'industrial' capacity is excessive because official projections of the Valley work force require only 1 mgd of additional industrial capaeity. Furthermore, even if all Valley wage earners were employed here, only 2 mgd of industrial capacity is necessary. The project plans for an excessive 4.1 mgd of 'industrial' flow.

There is no legally binding guarantee that the 'industrial' capacity will not be diverted to residential development. This would force current taxpayers to subsidize future residential land speculation. The 4.1 mgd of 'industrial' capacity represents 45,000 additional people beyond what is already planned for the Valley communities (Geldertown?).

The project's purpose is to remove the effluent's dissolved solids (mostly salt) from downstream water. Our natural runoff, however, has a higher salt content than the effluent. Whether the pipeline will satisfy all water quality needs is unknown. This unknown combined with the value of using 'waste' water for agricultural uses means the project may have value for only 20 years.

The Government refused to fund the 'industrial' capacity. Livermore and Pleasanton pay the full bill. They will continue to pay for additions to sewer plants and skyrocketing electrical bills for pumping.

Since there are so many doubts, excesses and lack of guarantees, it is prudent to turn this project down.

Proponent say delay increases costs. Blame that delay on those deliberately pushing an oversized, overly costly project without binding guarantees. We are in a position of taking it or leaving it. We urge you to 'leave it' by voting NO.

Rebuttal arguments to the above statements are currently being finalized by both sides.

Kottinger problems are being solved

PLEASANTON — Tenants at Kottinger Place have worked out the solution to one problem which has been bothering some of them for a long time and they appear on the road to solving the other one.

Tenants met last week with Housing Authority Executive Director Michael Parsons and worked out solutions to problems of access to the community building at night and a need to improve the little community's emergency warning bell system.

Gladys Sayer volunteered her services in keeping the key to the community building from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week. Now the building will be accessible from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week. Sayer will work with Margaret Carroll, who has been doing the job regularly.

The plan will be tried for 90 days and reviewed to see if any changes will be necessary.

Complaints the last from tenants at Housing Authority meeting indicated that the emergency warning system was functioning well, but the two persons responsible for hearing it were not always in and there was a chance of some emergencies going undetected.

In checking on it, Parsons learned there is a malfunction in the warning system itself. The wiring was installed too close to ground level and there have been short circuits in the wire as a result. The line will cost at least $7,000 to repair. Some of the money probably will come from the fund which is financing replacement of gas lines which also were installed too close to the surface and sprung leaks as a result:

Parsons is exploring the possibility of connecting the warning system to the fire department, which is just a couple of blocks from the senior citizens housing. Meanwhile, Parsons urged residents of the 50 cottages to work on the "buddy system".

Glads beat SF, win Astro crown

PLEASANT HILL —Kenny Watts had a field day as Chabot College's soccer team won the fourth annual Diablo Valley College Astro Cup Tournament with a 4-2 victory over a tough City College of San Francisco team on the DVC field here yesterday afternoon.

Watts, a freshman from Livermore High School, scored the Gladiators' first two goals and played a fine all - around game. He also had plenty of help from his teammates.

"This was our best game of the season," a satisified Chabot coach John Shaw said after the contest. "We had to play our best. San Francisco was the best team we've played this season."

Watts started the Gladiators off fast in the contest, driving home a five - yard shot 45 seconds into the match. He broke free from a group of players near the SF net and rammed the ball straight in.

About five minutes later San Francisco's Mike Diaz fired in an outstanding shot from about 20 yards out. SF got control of the ball near midfield then Diaz gradually worked his way down until he fired it in from the side to tie the score.

Watts scored his second goal with about five minutes left in the first half, again from about five yards out. He seemed to be jostled by several SF players but still managed to fired the ball in.

Casey and Kelly Clark scored the Gladiators' goals in the second period. Casey blasted a 35 - yarder 18 minutes into the half from the right side. Kelly came back 15 minutes later to score on a header. Derrick Hoxie assisted on the play.

Vincent Alaverz got San Francisco's second goal.

moring on the losers' home grounds. Watts scored the first goal and got an assist on the second when Sal Rodriguiez fired one in.

Contra Costa had no trouble in disposing of Diablo Valley 3-0 in the third place contest. Diablo Valley had fallen to San Francisco 4-1 in the other semi - final contest.

In Friday's first round action Chabot edged Skyline of San Bruno 1-0 at DVC.

Kurt Rohen scored the only goal of the contest with about seven minutes left in the match.

Shaw was pleased with the overall play of his athletes.

"I felt our goalie Pete Howard (former Livermore High athlete) played really well. He had five saves and did a excellent all - around job."

Chabot outshot San Francisco 17-14 and had six corner kicks for three for the City squad.

The championship was the first for Chabot since the Gladiators won the first tournament in 1973. Last year Chabot took fifth in the competition yet still went on to win the state crown.

Wolfe takes LP title

Vic Wolfe took advantage of a bad putt by Bob Fulton to win a one-hole playoff and with it the Las Positas Men's Golf Club Championships yesterday in Livermore.

Both golfers finished the 54-hole tourney with one - under par scores of 215. Wolfe parred the playoff hole while Fulton settled for a bogie after three - putting the green.

In the individual flight category four golfers came away richer after yesterday's round.

John Fischer's 201 was good enough to take the first flight. Following Fisher were Lloyd Hanson (206), Bill Lewis, Dalperti and Dan Waldear (207), Mike White and Bob Montgomery (208).

In the second flight Terry Thelen was the winner with a 202. Steve Benbow (204), Ed Wise (205), Mike Culy and Don Shanks (206), Ken Miller (208), and Bill Tudor (209) also came away with some cash.

Wayne Gartside won the third flight with a 207 and George Silva had a 209. Following Silva were Steve Miller (211), Jim Cavanagh (212), Carl Searcy (213), and George Moore and Lyle Head (14).

In the final flight Jerry Attwell's blazing 198 was four strokes ahead of Mike Karnavours' 202. Ron Holloway's 205, Larry Shadbolt, Lyle Sterns and Glen Crossmen's 210, and George Boknaich's 215 rounded out the money winners.

The tournament began last weekend with 36 holes and ended with today's 18-hole round. Wolfe was the leader from the very first day.

Reynoldson, Russ win doubles crown

Top - seeds Ron Reynoldson and Suzanne Russ lived up to their billing in winning the Livermore Tennis Club's mixed - doubles championships yesterday at Granada High School in Livermore.

The local pair won two tough matches yesterday to take the championship, besting the third and fourth - seed pairs in the semi - finals and finals.

Don Smith and Chralott Trimble ran the winners into a tie - breaker in the first set before running out of gas and eventually falling, 7-6, 6-2 in the semi - finals.

Reynoldson and Russ then fought off Brad and Pat Schalls, 6-4, 6-4, in the championship match. The Schalls had earlier knocked off Ralph Ames and Dottie Reynoldson in the semi - finals, 7-5, 6-1.

In the consolation final, Dick and Cathe Corallo beat Dave and Virginia Dean in a pair of tie - breakers, 7-6, 7-6. The Corallos got to the finals via a 6-1, 6-3 victory over David Stanfell and Judy Patterson while the Deans disposed of Howard and Mary Powell, 6-3, 6-2.

PBA Slates Rich Events

AKRON, Ohio — The Professional Bowlers Association has lined up a pair of $100,000 tournaments for its fall tour, which the organization says will be richest in its history.

Syracuse, N.Y., is the site of the $60,000 Syracuse Open on Nov. 5, followed by a pair of $100,000 tournaments in Glendale Heights, Ill., on Nov. 14 and in Detroit on Nov. 30.

The Fall tour winds up in Honolulu with the $20,000 Hawaiian Invitational.

The tour opens Oct. 12 with the $50,000 tournament in Minot, N.D. On Oct. 22, a $60,000 tournament starts in Battle Creek, Mich.

By the end of the year, there will have been 36 PBA tournaments with a gross prize fund of almost $2.7 million, a spokesman said.

Bothered Blue beats Texas

OAKLAND — Other American League pitchers should have Vida Blue's problems.

Yesterday, the Oakland A's lefthander limited the Texas Rangers to a pair of runs in seven and two - thirds innings. After the game, he was asked what went wrong.

And Vida, who listened to the clubhouse radio as Paul Lindblad saved Blue's 16th win over the season, 3-2 over the fifth-place Rangers, obviously didn't like it.

"When I do good, you climb all over me to put a crown on my head," he complained after giving up nine hits and two walks while striking out a pair, "And when I throw bad, I don't have no answer."

But Blue admitted that he was struggling before manager Chuck Tanner replaced him with Jim Todd, who quickly gave way to Lindblad.

"My control wasn't there," he said, fending off a follow-up question with, "If I knew what was wrong, I'd correct it."

Although they scored in the first inning, the A's gave Vida little to work with throughout his stint on the mound.

Lead-off batter Billy North got things going for Oakland , rapping a high - hopper through the box that Texas starter Tommy Boggs slowed down just enough that Sonny Randle's follow - up throw couldn't get North at first.

Although delayed when Bert Campaneris popped a hesitant bunt foul, North swiped his 70th base of the season one pitch before Boggs yielded a walk to Campy.

Don Baylor then dumped a bunt down the third base line that caught Ranger fielder Dave Thompson napping and reached first by knocking the ball out of Mike Hargrove's mitt — simultaneously all but severing Hargrove's right hand.

An inning later, Hargrove was forced to leave the game, but his replacement, San Francisco native Jim Fregosi, more than adequately filled in. The first inning run scored on a sacrifice fly by Rudi, but a subsequent Sal Bando fly turned into a double play when Campy tried to score on the 220-foot pop and was gunned down by right fielder Jeff Burroughs.

The A's chipped away for another run in the sixth when Joe Rudi ripped a two - out double over the head of lunging Juan Beniquez in center. Rudi crossed the plate when Bando smashed a double of his own off the left field wall.

Oakland completed its scoring before the Rangers dented Blue.

In the last of the seventh, Ron Fairly and Phil Garner each drew one - out walks on four pitches. North loaded the bases when Thompson flipped his grounder out of his glove for the lone error of the game.

Campaneris picked up the RBI with a sacrifice fly to short center that scored Fairly with his first run in an Oakland uniform.

Substitute first baseman Fregosi started a Ranger rally in the top of the eighth that ended with the potential winning run still on base.

The one - time California Angels star cracked a low line drive 360 feet over the left field fence with one out to break up Vida's shutout.

Burroughs followed with a chopped single up the middle and went to second when an inside pitch slipped off the mitt of catcher Gene Tenace for a passed ball. Tom Grieve's single to left scored Burroughs and sent Vida to the showers; the crowd of 6014 at the Coliseum easing the pain with a standing ovation.

But Todd gave up a 2-and-0 single to Beniquez that put pinch - Munner Dave Moates on third with the tying run and sent Tanner to the bullpen for Lindblad.

Mopping up the final inning and one - third, Paul allowed just one hit while striking out one and earning his fifth save.

Oakland meets the Rangers again today in a doubleheader, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Backs run wild

Michigan blasts Cards

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Fullbacks Rob Lytle and Russell Davis each scored two touchdowns and Michigan's backs ran wild Saturday as the No.1 - ranked Wolverines crushed Stanford 51-0.

Michigan's top five backs piled up 516 yards rushing in 51 carries for an average of more than 10 yards per carry.

Tailback Harlan Huckleby led the attack with 157 yards in 16 carries, including an eight-yard touchdown run to climax Michigan's first possession.

Less than a minute later, fellow sophomore Rick Leach, Wolverine quarterback, sprinted four yards for another TD, set up when Dom Tedesco recovered a Stanford fumble at the Cardinals' 17.

It was Michigan's game the rest of the way as the defense thwarted Stanford's touted passing attack and regained the prestige it lost in giving up 27 points in last week's victory over Wisconsin.

The shutout was the first suffered by Stanford since a 1967 loss to California.

The Cardinals were playing without flanker Tony Hill and halfback Ron Inge, both left home with injuries. Last year, the pair caught 13 passes for 192 yards in a 19-19 tie with Michigan.

Despite the injuries, Stanford had several good scoring chances.

The Cardinals drove 78 yards in the closing moments of the first half only to have a Benjamin pass to Jim Lofton go completely out of the end zone on the final play. They were also stopped at Michigan's 18 in the third quarter, then later in the period at their 14.

Stanford's Mike Michel tried to avert the shutout in the closing minutes but was wide on a 43-yard field goal attempt.

Lytle, who ran for 101 yards in 19 carries, scored his first touchdown on a 16-yard burst on a draw in the second quarter after John Anderson recovered a fumble by Stanford's Gary Lynn at the Cardinal 45. Lytle added his other score on a 14-yard burst in the third period.

Second - string fullback Davis, a sophomore, scored his first touchdown on a 16-yard burst through a huge hole up the middle in the second quarter to capitalize on Jim Picken's interception of a Guy Benjamin pass.

Davis sent the overflow crowd 103,741 screaming by dashing 85 yards for a fourth quarter touchdown. It was the second longest touchdown run in Wolverine history, the longest being fabled Tom Harmon's 86-yard burst in 1940 against California.

The other Michigan scores came on a 49-yard field goal by Bob Wood in the second quarter, and a three-yard pass from Leach to tight end Gene Johnson in the third.

Sooners topple California, 28-17

NORMAN, Okla. — Junior quarterback Dean Blevins ran 10 yards for one touchdown and passed 65 yards for another and Oklahoma's secondary lived up to its reputation as the fourth - ranked Sooners defeated pass - minded California 28-17 in college football Saturday.

With fullbacks Kenny King and Jim Culbreath running almost at will against the Golden Bears' lightweight line, the Sooners overcame some early fumbles to fashion a 21-7 halftime lead.

California's Joe Roth had success connecting with his receivers on short routes, but the Sooner secondary completely cut off the long pass until Roth hit wide receiver Ed Gillies on a 28-yard scoring aerial with 3:34 to play.

Culbreath, a senior, got the Sooners on the scoreboard with a 56-yard jaunt with 5:57 left in the first period, and Uwe von Schamann got the first of his four extra - point kicks.

Culbreath and King, who started the game, ran wild as the Sooners piled up 323 yards rushing in the first half. Culbreath rambled for 128 yards and King 100 in the first two quarters.

But Oklahoma had three drives stopped by fumbles, coughing up the ball once on the California six after a 61-yard dash by King. Sooner halfback Elvis Peacock had a 30-yard run into the end zone nullified by a penalty.

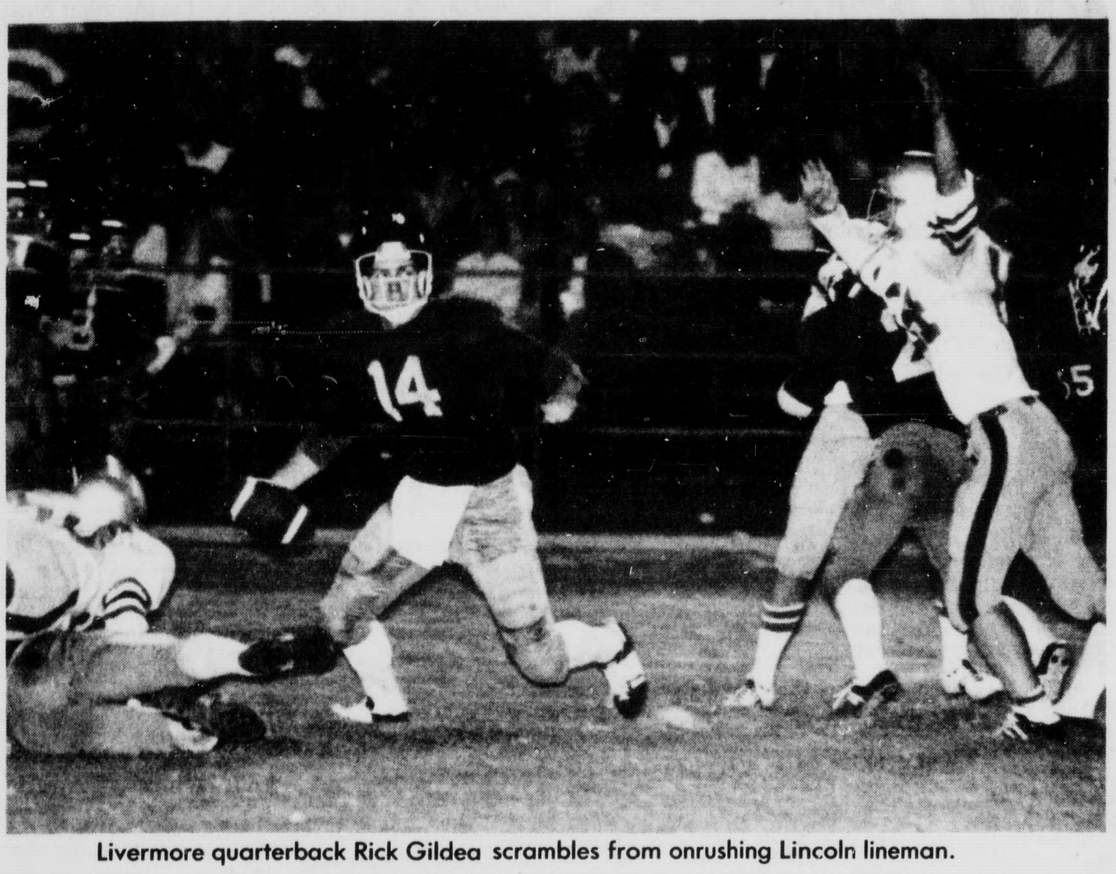
Palmer's big play stuns Lincoln



Livermore quarterback Rick Gildea scrambles from onrushing Lincoln lineman.

Tim Palmer turned heartbreak into glee for Livermore High School football fans Friday night and as a result the Cowboys are now 2-0 in non-league competition.

Palmer returned a pass interception 70 yards for a touchdown with 5:32 left in the contest to secure a 17-6 victory for the Cowboys over a strong Lincoln of Stockton squad at Livermore's stadium.

Lincoln, Morales, 1-6.

"I saw their full back (Craig Colvard) with his hands up like he was expecting the pass," so I just stayed with him and caught the ball," a happy Palmer said after the contest.

"I'd have to say this is my biggest thrill in football," the 190 pound defensive end went on. "Last week I had an interception against Castro Valley but this was my first one with a touchdown."

Lincoln had started its last - ditch effort three minuts before Palmer's interception. The Trojans moved from their own 11 to the Cowboy 36 in nine plays, mostly on the running of the powerful Colvard and Don Morales. Colvard, who led the game's rushers with 85 yards in 14 carries, carried for six, two and 11 yards on consecutive plays to move the Trojans to the Livermore 36. Then Lincoln quarterback Tom Spadfore and Colvard were stopped for no gain on running plays. Then came Palmer's big play.

Livermore struck first in the contest, driving 59 yards in eight plays in the first quarter. Halfback Pat Powles ran 15 yards straight up the middle for the score. Powles also had runs of five and nine yards in the drive. The big play, however came when quarterback Rick Gildea hit flanker Charlie Bockover for 21 yards to move the ball to the Lincoln 21. From there the Cowboys scored in three running plays.

Bockover added a field goal to the Livermore total on the first play of the second quarter when he banged one over the goal posts from 36 yards out. That kick culiminated a 16-yard drive which started when defensive end Brian Schweiger recovered a Trojan fumble.

Lincoln showed what it was made of when it took the second - half kickoff and drove 66 yards in 14 plays, again on the running of Colvard and Steve Thomas. Spadfore added a 16-yard run on the first play from scrimmage in the drive to spark the juice up the Trojan attack. Thomas, a small back with speed and excellent balance, dashed 13 yards to the Livermore seven to set up Colvard's one - yard plunge for the score.

Livermore took the ensuming kickoff and drove 68 yards to the Lincoln two before stalling. Bockover's field goal attempt from the 22 was wide.

The Cowboys had another chance to score when defensive back Naish Piazza intercepted a Trojan pass on the sidelines, giving Livermore possession on the Lincoln 35. A 15-yard penalty moved the Cowboys back and they were unable to push it in, giving the ball up to the Trojans for their unsuccessful last drive.

After the game Livermore mentor Ron Berg heaped praise on his dfensive unit.

"We did just outstanding on defense," he said. "Our linebackers were particularly excellent and so were our defensive ends. Schweiger is just a sophomore but he had a real fine game."

Berg also gave credit to th Livermore offense.

"Our offense got the yardage when it had to," he remarked. "We were playing a really physical team out there but our offense still did the job."

When asked why the Cowboys ran so well in their first touchdown drive Berg had a ready answer.

"We found a weakness in their defensive line middle. That's why we ran through there so much," he said. "After that they adjusted their defensive and that made them tougher to run on."

Lincoln outgained the Cowboys with 174 yards total offense to 156 for Livermore. Powles led the Cowboy rushers with 74 yards in 14 carries. Les Jacobs added 45 in eight attempts.

Matadors top Huskies in lackluster contest

FREMONT — Granada High School will presumably retain its high standing in the East Bay Prep Writers weekly football poll as a result of its 20-17 win over Washington at Tak Fudenna Stadium here Friday night.

But the aesthetically insulting contest consumed nearly three hours and sent most spectators scampering for the exits as soon as it became apparent that a last ditch Husky rally had failed. It also left Matador coach Don Couch far from satisfied.

"Mistakes. Period," he said, summing up the nerve - wracking affair, "It was a terrible game. The only thing good about it was that we won."

Granada might not have it if interceptions by Steve Waldera and Vance Rushing and a sack of star Washington passer Mike Ricupito by middle guard Mike Nalty hadn't blunted a trio of third quarter drives.

But there were a couple of positive aspects for the Livermore school. Rushing chalked up another 144 yards on the ground while junior quarterback Steve Robison shook off his first - game jitters of the week before, completing six of seven passes for 100 yards.

In addition, with Rushing "hampered" by a raging flu, the Mats distributed the ball more evenly, enabling Joel Strickland to establish himself as a running threat, picking up 79 yards on 10 carries.

Although, thanks to a missed connection on a pitchout play, the Mats gave Washington two chances to score from inside the ten late in the first quarter, the game remained scoreless till 16 minutes had gone by.

Then, Granada capped a 52-yard drive that featured a pair of long - gainers by Strickland with a three - yard dive into the end zone by Rushing, who had taken flu and allergy shots Friday morning in addition to a series of tests.

Moments later, Kevin Gosney recovered a John Coyle fumble to launch the Mats on a 66-yard, 9 - play drive that culminated with a rare bit of razzle - dazzle by Granada.

Robison tossed a quick pitch to Rushing, who fired a 23-yard pass to a wide open Jay McGowan at the right flag for the touchdown.

"That plays scares you," Rushing said. "You don't know what's going on. But the guy was wide open."

Early in what proved to be a marathon third quarter, Washington got on the board when Brent Dixon's deep - snap to punter Rushing sailed into the end zone where Vance was flattened by Husky end Grey De Renzi.

The Huskies followed up with a touchdown five minutes later as stocky Ralph Barbero struggled around left end for 11 yards — dragging a determined Strickland with him the final four yards — to make it 13-9.

But Granada answered quickly. On the first play from scrimmage after the Husky kick - off, Rushing galloped 88 yards for a TD. Don Ballinger, at the Mat 39, had the last shot at bringing Rushing down.

Jim Emig and Rick Bosch appeared to throw the key blocks on the play, but Rushing, as well as Robison, was quick to praise the entire offensive line.

The fourth quarter provided Ricupito with a stage for his passing show which fell three points and 40 yards short of upsetting Granada. But, while he threw for 160 of his eventual 196 yards in the period, a handful of Mat heroics blocked the path.

On third and goal from the Granada 10, Ricupito tried to reach favored receiver Mike Kane in the end zone but Waldera, a first - year defensive back stepped in for a one - handed interception.

"I thought he had me beat," Waldera laughed afterward. "Then, I didn't think I'd catch it."

The delay proved only temporary, however, as Ricupito threw on all but two downs as the Huskies marched 67 yards on nine plays for their final TD. He lofted a pass to running back Bon Fudenna for the TD and again sent Fudenna, whose relatives were instrumental in the building of the stadium, out of the backfield for a two - point conversion.

But, after gaining third and two at the Mat 21 on its next drive, Washington was stymied by a pair of five yard penalties and the 11-yard loss sack by Nalty. The Huskies might not have earned such deep field position had not Granada elected to go for it on fourth and one near midfield.

When Strickland was stopped for no gain, Couch vowed never to do that again.

"I had a couple people talk me into it," he admitted. "I've done it about twice in my life and it didn't work either time."

In the closing seconds, Ricupito moved the Huskies from their 20 to the Mat 40 only to have Rushing, playing only his second defensive play of the night, step in front of Kevin Meaney for the comeback - spoiling interception.

Robison, who did not fare well in Granada's 30-7 opening game win over Marina, seemed more at ease over center Friday. He explained: "We worked on taking more time with our passes this week, plus the line really did well. No one was even on me."

The only hitch in his performance was an inability to get together with Rushing on an occasional pitchout, something Vance took the balme for.

"He'd call a 'Right 17', which is a pitch or a pass," Rushing explained. "I kept thinking it was a pass and I wasn't where I should have been."

Just another bug to be worked out before the Matadors begin the defense of their East Bay Athletic League championship two weeks hence.

Grizzlies fall, 40-0

California High school's student body got its first chance to see their football team in action Friday night. They also got to see Ceres High.

Unfortunately, too much of Ceres. The result was a convincing 40-0 victory and Cal's second loss in as many tries.

"We let the other team intimidate us too much," offered a discouraged first year coach Mike McGinnis. "We just didn't play a respectable game."

Ceres did. The Bulldogs, receiving excellent running from Nick Grey and Allen McKay, stepped off 261 yards overland, 174 through the air, for 435 total offense.

McKay, who rushed for 114 yards in 14 carries, scored on second half runs of 30 and 50 yards.

Grey, on the other hand, squirted for 109 yards, including touchdown runs of one and 30 yards. Both of Grey's scores were achieved in the first half.

Cal, which had two players from its 24 man roster ejected, could only muster 31 yards on the ground. Passing wise, junior Tom Woodmansee completed eight of 13 for 151 yards.

Perhaps most impressive for the San Ramon school was Jim Lucas. The senior linebacker - flanker hauled in seven receptions totaling 163 yards.

Ceres, which had to punt in its first two drives, went 79 yards in 14 plays for its initial score. Grey plunged in from a yard away.

Amador no match for powerful Tracy

TRACY — Gilbert Correa provided the second half show while yellow flags dotted the landscape in the opening act as Tracy rolled over Amador, 27-8, in pre - season varsity football action in Tracy Friday night.

Correa, who was kept out of action in a first half that saw 175 penalty yards assessed, ran for 84 yards in nine carries in the second half, scoring a pair of touchdowns to lead a dynamic Bulldog ground game.

Tracy gained 304 yards on the dirt, as nine different Bulldogs gained yardage on the night. Ron Noakes had 71 yards on nine pegs while Lyndell Hawkins gained 53 yards on 10 carries to lead the remainder of the pack.

Tarcy salvaged a 7-0 halftime lead as a result of a bad Amador punt.

Facing a fourth down from their own 13 - yard line, Amador's John Sevo shanked his punt to the right, the ball bounding out of bounds st the 24 - yard line.

It took just four plays for the Bulldogs to score. Darrell Ceciliani culminated the brief drive with a 13 - yard burst around the end for the score. The PAT made it 7-0.

The Dons, who, at this point, were still looking for their first points of the season, marched 53 yards in eight plays on their first possession of the second half to take the lead. Pat Inglesby's 35 - yard pass completion to Paul McCleary set up the winning score, a 5 - yard jaunt up the middle by Sevo. Rob Flores scored the go-ahead two - point conversion on a pitch out.

What momentum the Dons did pick up quickly left them on the ensuing kickoff. Tracy's Hawkins returned the boot back to his own 49-yard line, and it took Tracy less than three minutes to score the goahead TD, a nine - yard run by Correa. Two - point conversion gave the Bulldogs a 15-8 lead.

Only 1:53 later, Mike Grijalva picked off a pass that slipped off intended receiver John Sevo's hands on a sideline pattern. Grijalva romped untouched into the end zone for a 21-8 lead.

Tracy's final score came in the final quarter, as the Bulldogs went 38 yards in four plays. Correa scored his second TD on a 10-yard run.

"The ball popped out of his hands, that interception clinched the game," moaned Amador coach Fred Wood. "That got them steamed up."

"We'll keep working on our passing game and our running game," he continued. The Dons dropped numerous passes on the evening, a couple coming in critical situations where the man was wide open at the goal line.

The Dons will be pleased to see Mike Goodison return to the lineup next week, according to Wood. "He should be ready. He's walking on it." Goodison sprained his ankle in last week's 13-0 loss to Mission San Jose.

Boulware awesome in Dublin victory

Jim Boulware again ran wild Friday night in leading Dublin High School to a 46-35 victory over visiting San Leandro High School.

The 10 pound senior fullback ran for 190 yards and scored four touchdowns as the Gaels evened their non-league record at 1-1. Dublin has one of the Bay Area's highest powered offensives. In two games the Gaels have scored 80 points.

In another non-league contest in Pleasanton Northgate's Broncos showed a strong defense in rolling over Foothill 10-2. It was the Falcons' second defeat in two tries this season. Last week the Falcons fell to a powerful Vanden squad 21-0.

Due to the large number of prep football games this weekend the Times sports staff was unable to get complete results on the Dublin and Foothill games. Detailed reports of these two games will appear in Tuesday's paper.

Dublin's Sean Mays boots another extra point in Gael 46-35 win over San Leandro Friday night.

MV, LL in scoreless tie

Monte Vista's Jim Nelson was disappointed but Las Lomas' Hal Teel was pleased.

Neither football coach came away a winner Friday night as their teams played to a scoreless tie.

Host Monte Vista was trying to win one for Sam Zackheim, long-time principal of the school. The Mustangs dedicated the contest to him.

As it was, the Mustangs were happy to get out of it with a standoff.

Las Lomas almost doubled the yardage on the Mustangs, ending up with 234 to 122 for MV. This caused Teel of the Knights to say, "I was very pleased with our defense and our offense showed it could move the ball, at least until we got to the 20. It was a good team effort for us."

Nelson, whose Mustangs had beaten Sunset of Hayward in their opener, observed, "It was a long night, a lot of dull football. Their defensive line was playing good football and getting off the ball. We thought we had a chance to run to the outside in the second half but we just didn't play very well."

Las Lomas' Bob Holdren missed field goal tries in the second and fourth quarters after the Knight offense had been stalled by penalties and fumbles. Tony Adams of Monte Vista got a hand on his second attempt.

Blake Mendenhall rushed for 82 yards in 24 carries for the Knights and Tom Madge had 73 in 10 packs. Mike Fiorenzo of Monte Vista was the most consistent Mustang rusher with 37 yards gained on nine carries.

In the final three minutes of the contest, Las Lomas was headed goalward again when the Mustang defense asserted itself and forced a fumble at the Monte Vista 20 with Tony Adams recovering.

In the closing seconds the teams traded interceptions.

Linebackers Serge Rigisich and Jim Borup were outstanding on defense for Las Lomas while Monte Vista's Rich Dwyer was equally effective effective for his team.

It was not a night for aerial fireworks. Las Lomas gained only 31 yards through the air and Monte Vista 18.

Oaks Club wins, 5-3

Singles by Don Armstrong, Tim Van Slambrovek and Danny King in the seventh inning scored the winning run as the Oaks Club edged the Lamplighters 4-3 in Livermore Area Men's recreation softball action Wednesday.

Armstrong opened the inning with a single. Then, after Ray Macias and Dave Saulter each flied out Van Slambrovak and King followed with their singles to score Armstrong.

Both teams scored three times in the fifth. The winners got singles from Thad Baker, Ray Macias and Dave Saulter plus an error for their runs. The Lamplighters took advantage of three Oaks Club errors and a hit by Jeff Pardiso to gain their runs.

Pardiso led the losers with two hits. Neil Zurakowski, Jim Padilla and Rick DeWiseelre also had hits for the losers. Ron Seagraves led the winners with three hits and Baker and King added two apiece.

American Sports Supply got four hits from Scott King in taking an 11-3 win over Fil-Am. Jeff Chapman and Chuck Miller each added two hits. Jeff Moore led the losers with three hits. Albert DeCastillo added two. Bing Santos, Rudy Sambrano and Dick Nickison each added one hit.

Cebu-Association also gained an 11-3 win, this coming over Bell Engineering.

The winners jumped off to a 4-3 lead in the second inning. Larry Nadeau blasted a triple and Frank Castro, Lou Fiori and Skip Western each had singles in the rally.

Cebu added four more runs in the fourth stanza, two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Clark looks to ground troops

SAN FRANCISCO — Monte Clark is a firm believer in the axiom "A good running game keeps the pressure off your defense." He repeats it constantly in this, his first season as head coach of the San Francisco Forty-Niners after a 17-year National Football League apprenticeship as a player and assistant coach.

Clark knows whereof he speaks. In 11 seasons as an offensive tackle, Monte channeled his physique (at 6-6, the tallest NFL coach, and 250 pounds in his playing days) and talents toward paving paths for the likes of Hugh McElhenny and Joe Perry at San Francisco and Jim Brown and Leroy Kelly at Cleveland.

As line coach and offensive coordinator at Miami, Clark charted the course of Larry Csonka.

"I've always been a believer in a strong, reliable running game," says Clark, whose team hosts the Chicago Bears this afternoon at Candlestick Park. "I believe you can win on first down; that is, getting four or more yards to keep your opponent honest.

"Short yardage on second and third downs also makes it easier to pass block. You have to seek that pass-run balance, but you can't concentrate too much on one to the exclusion of the other. Different situations, weather down and yardage dictate certain strategy."

The grind-it-out plan of attack began in pre-season. The 49ers rushed 246 times in six games, or 41 times a game for an average of 4.6 yards per attempt. In last Sunday's opening game 26-14 victory over Green Bay, San Francisco carried the ball 45 times for 210 yards.

Delvin Williams had the week's second best performance, posting a career-high 121-yards on 25 trips, including a 59-yard touchdown. Wilbur Jackson ranks 13th in the NFC in rushing after he gained 51 yards on 12 carries last week.

Last year, Williams filied in for an injured Jackson and ran for 631 yards on 117 carries for a 5.4 average gain that ranked second only to O.J. Simpson's 5.5.

The 49ers will also sport the NFC's fifth-ranked punter, Tom Wittum (44.5) when they face Chicago, which beat Detroit, 10-3, a week ago.

The Oakland Raiders, meanwhile, will have a couple of players with chances for individual milestones when they invade Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City Monday night.

Wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff, eighth on the all-time NFL receiving list, needs just three more catchs to reach the 500-reception level.

Running back Clarence Davis enters the game needing a relatively short chunk of ground — 30 yards — to haved gained 5000 yards total offense in his career.

He has rushed for 2357 yards, returned kicks for 2077 more and grabbed 536 yards worth of passes.

When the Raiders played in Arrowhead last year, the Cheifs snapped a three-game Oakland win streak and spoiled a previously unbeaten season with a stunning 42-10 upset in the traditional rivalry. The Raiders avenged that beating with a win over the Cheifs in Oakland.

As the Raiders passed their way to a shocking 31-28 win over Pittsburgh last week, Pete Banaszak, with 41 yards on 10 carries came out the leading rusher for Oakland with first-year starter Mark van Eeghan close behind.

Southpaw quarterback Ken Stabler, who directed the Raiders 17-points-in-three-minutes comeback, was listed as the tenth leading passer in the AFC with a 55.3 completion percentage for 342 yards, the most prolific total of the opening week.

Neal Colzie wound up seventh on the punt return list, with one for seven yards while Carl Garrett made the kick-off leaders in more reasonable fashion, bringing back three for 83 yards, good for fifth place.

Kansas City's veteran punter Jerrel Wilson leads that category with a 52.7 yard average while punt returner Larry Brunson ranks third with 28 yards on two packs.

Woody Green paces the Cheif running game as he gobbled up 62 yards on 12 carries in the opening loss to San Diego.

C&C Beauty wins thrilling playoff

C&C Beauty earned the right to play Bob's Babes for the Livermore Area Women's recreation softball championships by beating Buckley's Hustlers 5-4 recently.

The winners scored three runs in the seventh inning to erase a 3-2 deficit. Singles by Christy Palmer, Diane Staedel and Betty Malsam plus a walk to Bobbi Bartram scored the C&C runs.

Buckley's took a 3-2 lead in the fifth inning when Kathy Tompkins slammed a bases-loaded triple. Louise Martinez, Pat Lucas and Terri Risher all belted hits before Tompkins' blast.

The losers added a run in the eighth on a double by Risher and a single by Martinez.

Palmer, Staedel and Betty Malsam led the winners with two hits apiece. Risher had three for Buckley's Hustlers. Martinez added two and scored once.

In an earlier playoff game Buckley's Hustlers blasted Irby's Milk 12-5.

The winners scored seven times in the second inning and were never in trouble. They added four more runs in the fifth on singles by Risher, Tompkins, Sharon Gulley and Carol Van Ackel. Gulley, who led the winners with three hits, also slammed a triple in the sixth inning to drive in Tompkins with another run.

Buckley's belted 17 hits to five for the losers. Betty Ogden and Frances Way led Irby's with two hits apiece.

Way had a triple in the third inning that scored Lanne Whalen with the losers' first run. Whalen reached first on a single.

Halicki, Lavelle shutout Reds, 5-0

CINCINNATI — Ed Halicki and Gary Lavelle combined for a two-hitter and Gary Thomasson and Chris Speier hit solo homers, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 5-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Saturday night.

Lavelle, 9-6, allowed only one hit in five innings of relief after Halicki departed in the fifth with a sore back. It was only the seventh shutout suffered by Cincinnati in 150 games this season.

The Giants staked Halicki to a 2-0 lead after four innings, one of the runs coming on Thomasson's homer in the first. They added two runs in the sixth, one of them a leadoff homer by Speier. Fred Norman suffered his fifth loss against 12 victories.

KC tops Sox

KANSAS CITY — Jim Wohlford's ninth-inning single, his third hit of the game, scored Fred Patek from second base and gave the Kansas City Royals a 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday night.

The Royals' victory protected their 5½-game lead over Oakland in the American League West. The A's nipped Texas 3-2 in an afternoon game.

Patek opened the inning with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice by Buck Martinez before scoring the winning run.

The White Sox had tied the game in the eighth on Jim Essian's single and a double by Lemar Johnson.

Larry Gura, 2-0, the fifth Royals' pitcher, was the winner while Ken Brett, 10-10, was the loser.

Pelekoudas raps Finley

Veteran professional leagues umpire Chris Pelekoudas believes Major League expansion "is a mistake" and if the Oakland A's had another owner besides Charles O. Finley, they'd draw "a million-and-a-half" every year.

Speaking to the Livermore Jaycees at the Emperor's Garden Restaurant in Livermore Wednesday, Pelekoudas recounted his 28 years in umpiring, 16 of which were in the National League.

Now a resident of San Jose with a real estate business, Pelekoudas also is working in support of Proposition 13, an initiative on the Nov. 2 ballot that would legalize greyhound racing in this state.

Much of his 40-minute talk was anecdotal, his stories including former Cardinals hot-corner star Ken Boyer, the first black umpire in the majors, Emmett Ashford, Leo Durocher, ex-Giants catcher Ed Bailey, and a retinue of minor league players and managers.

Pelekoudas said when he started umpiring in 1949 there were 59 minor leagues with 32 openings for umpires.

Now there are not even a third that number of leagues.

After "kicking around" for five years after school, Pelekoudas decided to attend umpiring school in Florida.

He started as an umpire in the Eastern Shore League at $225 a month. He quit after one year because the league wouldn't give him what he thought was needed gas mileage money.

He was next sent to the Inter-State League, a Class C lineup that paid $325 a month.

Pelekoudas was somewhat bitter at the treatment accorded umpires, not by the fans or players so much as by professional baseball management. "Umpires are bought and traded (between leagues) just like ballplayers, and the pay is not guaranteed to make you rich."

From the Inter-State League, Pelekoudas next moved to the Western League with franchises in such metropolis' as Pueblo, Colo., and Omaha, Neb. This was the league, Pelekoudas recalled, that often featured Sunday evening doubleheaders followed by 600 or 700mile rides to a league game the very next night.

He spent three years in the Colorado, Iowa and Kansas circuit before culminating a long and soul-searching career in the minors in the Pacific Coast League. Pelekoudas traveled the coast between Seattle and San Diego (the old PCL also had franchises in Oakland and San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles, Portland, Hollywood and San Diego) between 1953 and 1959.

After umpiring 1,800 games in the minors, Pelekoudas said he started developing "a chip on my shoulder. I was really getting antsy. I was starting to feel more important than any other human being — I knew I was ready years before to umpire in the Majors."

Pelekoudas finally got the call in 1959, after being talked out of quitting by his wife, and umpired the next 16 seasons in the National League.

His starting salary in the Majors in was $6,000. He said the highest paid umpire today makes $34,000 and per diem is $49 per day (it was $20 back in '60) but that must take care of lodging, meals, upkeep of uniforms, clubhouse attendant fees and several other incidentals.

Pelekoudas feels that there are enough Major League-calibre ballplayers to stock no more than 16 teams at present (There are a total of 24 Major League clubs with 25 men on every roster)— "the other eight should be sent to the bush leagues."

"I believe Finley was right in trying to sell Blue, Fingers and Rudi, but if any other person owned that franchise they would be drawing 1½ million persons a year," Pelekoudas concluded.

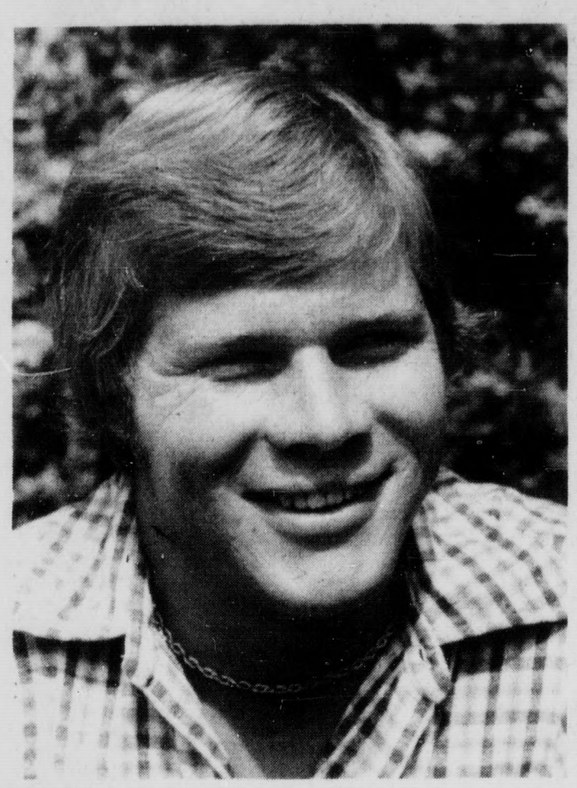
Ex-Wolf hurler returns from minors



Lew Olsen is back

There was no parade, celebration, gathering or motorcade. Lewis Olsen returned home quietly.

Olsen, notably the greatest baseball player to graduate from San Ramon High School and pursue his sport to further extents, came home to Alamo a few days ago.

With a handshake from Dan and a hug from Mom, Lew returned from a brillant minor league season, highlighted by a divisional championship and inspiring statistics.

The Omaha Royals, who which Lew was a part of for the duration of the summer, convincingly won the eastern conference of the triple "A" American Association.

Olsen, on the other hand, complied a respectable 9-7 record as a starting pitcher. (Omaha went on to lose in the playoffs against the Denver Expos.

Said Olsen, a towering lad in his early 20s, "One thing I learned was not how hard you throw it, but where you throw it.

"My velocity was considerably slowed this year than when I was in high school."

Lew attributes that to Bill Fisher, who spent last September until mid-Novemeber with Olsen in winter ball.

"Bill helped me on my mechanics," said Olsen. "It seemed to help me on my control."

As far as this season, Lew said he was one of the "earlier" guys to be sent down from spring training to the minors.

"I was a border line case," Olsen observed. "I was either going to Jacksonville (double A-Fla) or Omaha." As it turned out, Lew started the season with Omaha and of course, completed it.

"It went pretty well," he recalled, now looking forward to his second quarter at Stanford University.

"The season went pretty good for us. We couldn't put it together... up to par in the playoffs. We played solid ball and got the basic plays."

Olsen said Omaha, which won its division by 10 games over Iowa, ironically won the majority of its matches on the road while losing "a lot" at home.

Commenting on the hitters, Olsen said hitters in the American Association tend to be more selective.

"They take more pitchers," he noted. "They go for anything in the other leagues. Most of the guys have been in the majors and around the league.

"In the A.A. they pick their pitches ... either inside or outside."

Kansas City, currently floundering in the American League West, brought up two pitchers from Omaha at the end of the class "AAA" campaign.

"It was really close," explained Lew, when asked what his chances were of going up for the remainder of the season. They tend to base it on experience."

Olsen, however, believes his prospects will be brighter next February when he reports to Sarasota, Florida for spring training.

"I'd like to think next year will be it," he said of making the majors. "They're adding two expansion teams in the American League.

"I'm sure K.C. will lose a few. I'll just have to prove myself. You just have to believe in yourself.

"It all depends on who you're with. My goal is to make it to the majors."

Olsen at present is undecided about his major, but would like to study architecture in the future.

Olsen said his best game this summer came against Indianapolis.

"I had exceptional control," he said of his two-hit shutout win. "A couple of games I had a good fastball and good velocity."

Lew, who would have become a free agent next year, went ahead and signed for an undisclosed bonus to remain with Kansas City.

"I went ahead and signed," Lew added. "I wouldn't have gained a whole lot by not signing. It was a decent raise."

"I'm not playing winter ball," he said. I'm going to give my arm a rest and exaggerate the mechanical things. There's a million of them."

Lew, before going to Omaha, did get to pitch two innings against the Texas Rangers. "It's just a thrill to get those players out.

"The first time I faced Jeff Burroughs, I went two and two then hit him. I got Hargrove (Mike) and Grieve (Tom)."

And probably many more.

Olsen, who signed with the Royals out of high school, spent his first year with San Jose of the California League.

Before pitching 10 innings for Billings, Montana, Lew spent his second year with Jacksonville and Waterloo, Florida.

He likes the Royals' chances this year, despite the club's losing habit and the Oakland A's winning surge. "They have depth, the players and should win it," he said.

Devils beat Quakes

The Dust Devils edged the Earthquakes 5-4 in Livermore Soccer Club action recently.

Carl Dice scored a goals and had one assist to pace the winners' attack. Ernie Long, Dave Johnson, Corey Cruz and Rick Brixey also had goals for the Dust Devils.

Mike Sandlin and John Seichter also stood out for the winners. Steve Lopez, Chris Ruzicka and Marty Wagner played well for the Earthquakes.

Brixey had six saves and Ron Koroush five for the winners. Mike Rovasio had two saves for the losers.

Golf range owner does his own thing

People not knowing better, call Jack Leavitt a "hippie." Why not? The stereotype fits. His long locks carry down to his shoulders, his clothes are tattered with holes and often his feet walk without the help of shoes.

But, don't make the mistake of second guessing. Like he says often, "I'm just like you or the next guy..."

As Harlan Geldermann, the land baron in the San Ramon Valley, says, "He's not a hippie. He's my cousin."

And that seems like a fitting beginning for telling the story of a guy who's seeking fame and fortune by collecting golf balls for a living.

In fact, like Geldermann who is associated with some early San Ramon Valley tract developments like Round Hill Country Club and Round Hill Estates, Leavitt owns a pretty good chunk of soil in the area, too.

He and his brother inherited 304 acres in San Ramon when his grandmother died. Leavitt just recently sold part of his, trimming his share down to 104 acres.

What's a person do with that much acreage?

"Pay lots of taxes," groaned Leavitt.

"I was just getting priced out. It's ridiculous. You don't make any money by owning a lot of land nowadays. I had to come up with something to pay for all the land."

Instead of going the easy route by selling out and climbing aboard the nearest cruiser to the Bahamas, Leavitt was suddenly struck by a brainstorm. Today he's making it pay off in the form of the Sand Trap Golf Range off Interstate 680 in San Ramon.

"I was standing by this lake over this big hill one day," he explained, "and saw all these blown up golf balls. I wondered how in the hell they got here."

He went to one of his neighbors and discovered the answer in an instant.

"He told me he hit the balls and his dog would chase them," he continued. "There were a thousand out there, all blown up. I asked the guy what he does and he told me he was a golf course superintendent.

"I just stood there and looked at the golf balls, the large open field and it suddenly hit me. This place is a natural for a driving range. I just said, 'Wow, I'm going to build a driving range'."

The tax problem is now solved, his mother has a job and Leavitt, a man of many motions, is having the time of his life.

He's not going anywhere, although he often thinks of the places he could be.

"I've thought that I could always sell the land and move to Tahiti and sit under a palm tree and drink rum" he said with a laugh. "But I'm not into that. After looking back at how hard my ancestors worked to get the land, I wouldn't feel right in walking away from a place like this. I'd be haunted for the rest of my life if I sold. I couldn't pull a Woody Allen 'take the money and run' trip."

Now the 31-year-old good natured Leavitt spends his days traversing the range, riding side-by-side with his dog, Dudley, in an automatic ball retriever.

But, life doesn't stop there for this zealous soul. Leavitt shows the mark of excellence in producing rock concert shows, is an avid politician, and is settling a case in court with the American Basketball Association.

And his list of jobs over the years looks more like a tally sheet at the employment center. He's sold candy, shoes, hamburgers, hotdogs, and once had a job where he shined the poles on a merry-go-round.

Leavitt was always motivated by his grandmother's well chosen words.

"She always told me to do something that will require luck," he remembered. "Don't attempt anything you can't do. Know what you can do. I was sure I could do all those jobs. But I don't play music or roller skate, because I know I can't do them.

"I don't even waste my time on it," he continued. "She said things you can do, you should put your nose to the grindstone, and go out and do. Don't burn any bridges because if you burn a bridge, you'll never walk across."

Leavitt knows what he can do and does it well. In 1972, the slender music buff, produced the first outdoor rock concert in San Diego Stadium, and "maybe throughout the country," he boasted.

"San Diego didn't know anything about music at the time," noted Leavitt, of the loud sounds following a Padres baseball game.

He put Boz Skaggs on stage with Santana and in an instant became a hit. He also carried a sizable bankroll away in his pocket. For a day's work, the young producer picked up $150,000.

Leavitt has booked some 30 shows since, headlining such talent as Pink Floyd, Hot Tuna, Leon Russell, Quick Silver and Fleetwood Mack, to name just a small portion.

Next year he plans to take a hike to Toronto, Canada, and produce four more attractions before American League baseball fans.

"We're going to bring this concert back to the people," he said. "The highest price ticket in the place is only going to be $4.50. You can't beat that anywhere. We want to bring it back to where it started. Rock and roll started in garages."

Leavitt remembers the days well. While attending San Jose State in 1965, the young rock star couldn't wait for the weekend. On Fridays he held "Thank God it's Friday" (TGIF) parties in his backyard with the idea of picking up a quick buck.

"I charged people a dollar to drink beer and listen to music at my house on Seventh Street," he recalled. "Yeah, I'd pick up $500 every week. Then I'd get thrown in jail on Friday night for not having a liquor license or a band permit. So, I'd pay $50 to get out and come away with $450. I was a millionaire, man. I was really doing it. I had long hair and everything else. In those days you were either considered a freak or you weren't. I was."

Rejoicing over his big money caper when he walked away with thousands from the Skaggs-Santana concert, Leavitt grabbed for more in a second attempt and came up with nothing but court hearings.

Now he's suing the ABA.

Leavitt had Dave Mason and Canned Heat booked for a concert following a Conquistador basketball game last year. Two days before the game and concert, the league revoked the ranchise. Since only eight games remained on the schedule, San Diego played the contest and the final seven games.

Leavitt's show went on.

When Leavitt went in to pick up his $32,000 or two-thirds of the gate, a trustee for the ABA said the sports arena had the money.

The dollar stopped there.

Leavitt met Bill Quinn and the sports arena manager said he didn't have his money, because he didn't own the contract, and that the check would have to be picked up from the ABA.

"I picked up Quinn out of his chair and almost tossed him across the room," said Leavitt, feeling violent that day. "I was mad. I jumped on his desk and really caused a fracas."

It turns out the Q's took the gate receipts, paid players, ushers and venders before paying for the concert.

"I didn't know it before I did the concert," continued Leavitt, "but they (San Diego) were $80,000 behind in back payments on the Arena. Gross on the place was $76,400 for a sellout.

"The contract read that they get it first (Conquistadors), then I get it. There was no way I was going to get any money. The Q's signed a fraudulent contract with me, knowing I'd never get a dime. Now, I'm suing for $500,000."

Leavitt wanted a crack at politics but lost his chance when his nomination papers for city council missed the deadline recently by 15 minutes.

"I can't believe they didn't take it.

"I was going to run because I've seen this Valley grow. I watched my grandmother sacrifice a lot. I figured let's have a pioneer resident who knows what's good for the Valley rather than some guy who's been here for three years and knows nothing about it."

Leavitt sees caution signs wherever he goes. You can't take life too fast, he stressed. He's prone to slowdown, easy-going, carefree lifestyle.

He likes to relate his grandmother's version on how to attack life.

"She would tell me that life is like a street full of manhole covers and they are all open," he said. "So if you run right down the street, you're going to fall in one of them. But if you take your time, just like life, you'll make it."

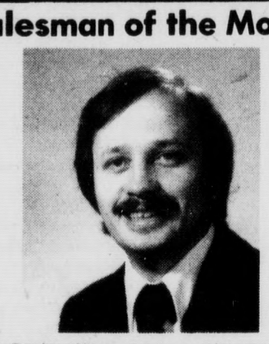
85. Real Estate Announcement & Information

Salesman of the Month



Valley Realty of Livermore is proud to announce that Vic Romero is their "Salesman of the Month" for August. This is the third time in 7 months that Vic has earned the honor.

Originally, a resident of Albuquerque, New Mexico, Vic attended San Jose State. He now resides in San Ramon with his wife, Cynthia, their two boys and a foster child.

Being in real estate only 8 months, Vic has already exceeded his personal goal toward reaching the Million Dollar Club.

HONDA
CIVIC CVCC ★ WAGON ★

HONDA CIVIC CVCC WAGON

It's smaller outside, so it's easy to maneuver and park. But inside, it's big. So it gives you the extra room you buy a wagon for. With the rear seat folded down you get nearly 4½ feet of carrying space. And the Honda Civic CVCC® Wagon comes with five doors, including a huge rear door that makes loading and unloading easy. Test own a Honda Civic CVCC Wagon. It's an unforgettable experience.

CVCC and Civic are Honda trademarks.

HOW TO BE CREATIVE AND THRIFTY

Shells, bows, spirals, ribbons and elbows are but a few of the shapes that lead pasta creativity in many directions. European, American, Oriental are but a few examples of the world of flavors that can be combined with pasta for economical meals. A great extender, pasta blends easily with other ingredients in recipes for casseroles, main dishes, salads, soups and side dishes.

Durum wheat is the main ingredient in fine pasta. It is ground and blended with water to make a dough that is molded or extruded to become one of the many shapes of pasta we see in the supermarket. Since durum is the hardest of all wheats, it has a higher protein content than most other varieties. Pasta reflects this characteristic by being a fairly good source of dietary protein. But protein is only part of the story of pasta. The enriched version supplies essential B-vitamins along with iron. Carbohydrate, calcium, phosporous and potassium are also found in pasta. As mentioned, a plus for pasta is its economy. Team it up with vegetables, meat, fish, cheese, poultry or leftovers to stretch your food dollars.

As an example of this, we have a recipe leaflet for you on "Yankee Doodle Beef", which is a tasty combination of pasta with ground beef, seasonings, vegetables and tomato sauce. Come and get your free recipe for this one-dish meal. No purchase required.
